Dated October 14th, 1914.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

In the estate of Richard Young, deceased.

Notice is hereby given pursuant to Chapter 121, of the Statutes of Ontario, 1914, Section 56, and Amending Acts, that all persons having any claims or demands against the estate of Richard Young, late of the City of Watertown, in the State of New York, deceased, who died on or about the 26th day of January, A. D. 1913, are required to deliver or send by post prepaid to John English, Napanee, Ontario, Canada, solicitor for Charles E. Kimmitt, executor of the last will and testament of the said Richard Young, deceased, on or before the 9th day of November, A. D. 1914, their christian and surnames, addresses and descriptions, with full particulars of their claims or demands duly verified, and the nature of the security (if any) held by them. And further take notice that after the said 9th day of November, A. D. 1914, the said executor may proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate amongst the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims or demands of which he shall then have received notice, and will not be responsible for the said assets, or any part thereof, to any person or persons of whose claims or demands he has not received notice at the time of the distribution thereof.

Sgd. JOHN ENGLISH,
Solicitor for the said Executor.

Sgd. J. H. MADDEN, Judge.
Dated this 14th day of October, 1914.

Napanee Plowing Match

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather and land conditions the Third Annual Plowing Match of the Lennox and Addington Branch of the Ontario Plowmen's Association was the largest yet held at Napanee. Thirty-one teams could be counted on the land at one time which was three more than last year. But for the dryness and hardness of the ground the number might easily have been doubled but many kept away solely on account of not being able to do really first class work on that heavy clay in its present condition. The crowds, though fairly good, would have been much larger had the day been warm and sunny, but owing to the cold wind the people were unable to stand around for any time.

The Judge, Mr. James McLean, was very persistent in his praises for the work performed and the general improvement in all the plowing since he came down to our first match was most marked. He said, "Three years ago this was the poorest match in the whole Province but now I think it will rank third or fourth which I think is very creditable."

The largest classes were Men's Sod and Stubble. In the former there was some exceptionally fine work by the prize winners. Mr. Thos. Craven who carried away the first money, had without any question the finest Crown in the field. He used an expert sod plow and laid his furrows up in splendid shape. The heart of his land was not so good as fearing to be late he hurriedly turned over two or three furrows that marred the general appearance, but the crown and finish easily won him the money. The second and third, Mr. Joseph Seals and John Kent did splendid work also.

In the stubble class Joseph Kent turned over as nice a land as the judge had seen for some time. There was one furrow in Mr. Kent's land that was a little prominent and had he broken the high lumps off it would have been improved another 10 points. On the whole, however, it was excellent plowing. The stubble land was very awkwardly placed this year, being divided and the sections over half a mile away, making it very hard for the judge to give good decision.

The hottest competition in the whole field occurred in the Boys' Sod between C. C. McKim and Joseph Kent. The former carried away the trophy, "The Pommon Bank Cup," which is now his possession, being won two years. The Judge spoke very highly of McKim's work, the straightness, depth and the way the furrows were laid up was better than his neighbors. In the Stubble Class, 4 boys started but only three finished the prize being won by Kenneth Lockridge who did some very good work considering that the ploughing was in very hard land.

The Boys' Classes were poorly filled this year. There is no reason at all, seeing the prizes that are offered, why all the classes should not be 7,000,000 Belgians now facing starvation. Soup kitchens in Brussels feeding over 100,000. Immediate relief necessary.

Therefore all are urged to contribute whatever is possible to mitigate such distress and destitution. The second supply ship from Canada without doubt sail shortly, consequently kindly continue your donations whether of clothing, portable food or financial aid, sending to above Committee-room in the Harsh block, (1 flight up) where all will be gratefully received.

Children's clothing especially desired, but all clothing, cleaned and good condition very acceptable.

A very large number attended our weekly work meeting on Thursday last, and all expressed themselves greatly enjoying the afternoon, the financial result being most gratifying.

These meetings will be continued weekly. The committee-room will be open in addition on Tuesday, Friday and Saturday afternoons, from 2 to 5.30 p.m., for the distribution of materials and reception of work and donations.

The Boys' Classes were poorly filled this year. There is no reason at all, seeing the prizes that are offered, why all the classes should not be doubled or trebled. There are many splendid plowmen through this county and the opportunity to meet in friendly rivalry is one of the finest things in the world. Next year it is hoped that far greater interest will be taken in it. This year was a good success and there is no reason why we should not have one of the finest matches in the province.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—In the early scene of operations the Russians continue a successful offensive against the Austro-Germanic armies in land and Galicia. The flight of Germans from before Warsaw, Ivangorod continues, and latest spatches indicate that the enemy now fallen back seventy-five miles from Warsaw, driven with the bayonet from every place where he dares to check the Russian advance.

An official despatch from Petrograd, issued yesterday afternoon says:

"The precipitate flight of the Germans continues. They are seventy-five miles west-southwest of Warsaw. They made an unsuccessful attempt to arrest the offensive Russian movement by clinging to positions at Sokhatchoff, from which, however, they were dislodged with heavy losses."

Last night the following Russian official despatch was received:

"The combats upon the road leading to Piotrkow and Radom assumed the character of a great battle, of which the front extends thirty miles, from Rawa to Nowo-Iasto and Bialobrzegi as far as the mouth of the River Ilanka."

"The evening of Oct. 24 north of Rawa we attacked the German point of the bayonet, inflicting on them considerable losses. In village of Morschilko alone we but over seven hundred Germans."

Germany Didn't Intend to Attack Canada, Anyway.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. — Although Germany contends that Canada, by sending troops against Germany, has violated the spirit of the Monroe doctrine, Germany has no intention of attacking Canada nor attempting to colonize the Dominion, according to this statement issued here yesterday by the German embassy:

First Clash With Germans Was Hot day For Orientals.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A despatch to The Daily Telegraph dated "Northern France," relates the first instance of the British Indian troops coming into action.

"It was at La Basse last week," says the despatch, "when by a great effort the Germans carried the British trenches, and the position looked dangerous. An avalanche of the enemy poured through, evidently supposing that the way was open to the coast. They had a rude awakening."

"The supports of the British line here were the Indian troops, who had been thirsting to prove their quality. It was a bayonet affair and the German advance was beaten and broken."

"The Indians ran through them using the steel in their workmanlike fashion and thrusting the foe back to receive the right and left fire of the British infantry who awaited their coming."

"Not only did the Indians regale the lost trenches, but they pursued the enemy down the hill until their commanders recalled them."

At Ypres an unsuccessful German attack resulted in casualties of 3,000. At La Basse they are apparently doing somewhat better. Their masses of infantry with heavy artillery seen at present to be slowly advancing in this section. Their progress is by no means alarming and can be firmly held should it become dangerous.

The heavy punishment inflicted on the German troops in the last few days has raised the hopes of every one to a high pitch. An officer who flew over the enemy's lines yesterday morning says that the Germans now advance to the attack shouting like dervishes. The British are unperturbed by this noisy demonstration and wait until they come within 300 yards' range, and they give them 10 rounds and it is all over. But the German artillery fire is still very good.

MET WALL OF TROOPS.

German Passage of the Yser Availed Them Little.

PARIS, Oct. 27. — The smashing tactics of the Germans along the North Sea coastline continued incessantly, when the big guns were turned on Neuport, and the allies had to withstand constant attacks of masses of troops. Very little progress however, was made by the Germans yesterday, who were faced with the strongest resistance.

Sunday's crossing of the Yser apparently had only a moral effect as the Germans were confronted by solid lines of allied troops, and were prevented from advancing without overwhelming efforts further toward the Channel ports. The character of the country prohibits a rapid movement as the land is cut up by canals, and two strong series of defensive works separates them from Dunkirk.

The German infantry executed a number of night attacks, not only on the extreme wing but also in the vicinity of Lille, where they encountered a most obstinate resistance. The allies are displaying wonderful energy in this region. The commanders are sparing their men many hardships and are able to give constant relief to the troops on the firing line.

When they come from the frontier for a rest the troops are accommodated in the numerous villages scattered in the rear, where they seem to throw off all feeling engendered by the critical situation and play cards, dominoes and other games in the cafes until the bugles call them together for a further spell of fighting. Then they go forward cheerfully to the inferno, where they must face the shrapnel and machine guns, bidding "so long" to their comrades, whose places they are taking.

7,000,000 FACE FAMINE.

American Minister to Belgium Says Only Two Weeks' Supply.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 27.—(By way of London)—Nearly 7,000,000 people in Belgium face famine unless they receive help from the outside at once.

The American Minister to Belgium says that less than two weeks' supply of food remains in the cities, while conditions in the country districts are even worse. Though Germany has seized the food in some cities for her soldiers, she still disclaims responsibility for feeding over 100,000 of the needy in Brussels. Families formerly rich are discharging their servants because they are bankrupt. Noblemen may be seen slipping into the soup kitchens.

Reports received by the United States Minister from Louvain, Liege and Namur say that the conditions in these cities are even worse than they are in Brussels. Louvain has only a four-days' supply of flour, while Liege has no flour at all.

The meat and milk supplies also have been cut off, the army having taken the cattle.

Belgians of all classes appear disheartened. Old women and cripples may be seen sitting near their shattered homes in Malines, nodding mutely at the cathedral with its shattered windows and tottering walls, damaged beyond repair by shell fire.

Similar conditions are found in the small villages between Antwerp and Brussels. Few stores are open. Those attempting to re-establish their homes find their roofs, which have been pierced by shells, no protection from the rain that is now falling every day. The villages that stood near contested forts were literally razed, yet many of the inhabitants remain living in rudely constructed sheds or tents.

British Cavalry Exploit.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—According to the newspaper Cri de Paris, a naked detachment of British cavalry routed a Uhlan patrol near Noyon. The British were playing water polo in the Oise when the approach of the Uhlans were signalled. There was not enough time to dress, so, quitting the water, they leaped into their saddles as they were and, dripping wet, chased the Germans five miles across country.

The official communique of the French War Office, issued yesterday afternoon, says: "During the day of yesterday (Sunday) our front along the general line between Nieuport and Dixmude was maintained. The German force which crossed the Yser between these two towns has not been able to progress."

"Our front has held also in the region between Ypres and Roulers, between Armentieres and Lille, to the west of La Bassee and Lens, and to the east of Arras. This line is continued to the south by the line which already has been indicated in these official communications. During the fighting of recent days the enemy seems to have sustained considerable losses."

"In Russia, to the west of the Vistula and to the north of the Pilica river, the Germans have been captured at the point of the bayonet by the Russians."

"To the south of the Pilica, in the direction of Radom, there has been a lively engagement between the Russians and the Austro-Germans, who lost prisoners and cannon."

"To the south of Soleo, the Russian troops crossed the Vistula by main force, driving the Austrians back. On the River San, and to the south of Przemysl, there have occurred stubborn combats resulting favorably to the Russians. An Austrian column debouching from the Carpathians on Dolina (in Galicia, 22 miles to the south of Stry) was routed."

"It is clear that the Germans are putting Antwerp in a state of defence. In most of the important forts the Belgian guns have been replaced with German fortress artillery of the largest type."

"The bridge between Antwerp and Pays de Waes, which the retreating Belgians damaged, has been repaired. Evidently the Germans are preparing a line of retreat from the Ostend-Dixmude line."

is now going on in that region, and both sides have rushed reinforcements there.

Reports from Holland indicate that the Germans are preparing to evacuate Ostend, and are making extensive preparations in Antwerp, as though anticipating a siege there.

The allies have been successful in fierce fighting in the vicinity of Lille.

That the German advance along the Channel coast is well over the Yser river at a point between Dixmude and Nieuport, but has been unable to make any further progress, is the result of the great German drive in Flanders. Reports from other parts of the 300-mile front are entirely favorable to the allies, and it is said now that the French have succeeded in throwing large masses of troops into the Argonne forest, penetrating as far as the Village of Metzcourt, effectually splitting the armies of the German crown prince on the east of the Argonne and the forces of the Duke of Wuertemberg on the west.

In spite of the Homeric efforts of the Kaiser's armies, the drive southward from Flanders to Dunkirk and Calais seems destined to perish midway, after a terrible loss of life, and with nothing to show for the enterprise, not even a moral advantage. First the Belgians and latterly the Belgians supported by British and French have frustrated each new attempt to strike a decisive blow. The Flanders coast line from Ostend to the French border, for a distance of three miles inland, is free of the Germans, driven away from the ocean's fringe by the tremendous fire of the allied warships. But the invaders have planted artillery that commands every available approach for a flanking force from the naval contingent, and for the present a landing will not be attempted.

After ten days of the most stubborn fighting the Germans forced a passage of the Yser in the district lying from six to ten miles inland, and they are believed to hold the allied side of the stream for a stretch of about five miles. This, of course, was sufficient to permit bringing troops across the river in force. The final and successful assault of the Germans on the Belgian lines, when great masses of infantry and hundreds of heavy guns co-operated, is understood to have occurred early on Sunday morning.

With the Belgians falling back in good order and contesting every foot of the way, British reinforcements reached their lines by noon Sunday, when the defence immediately stiffened and halted. A few hours' later French infantry arrived in large numbers, and a re-offensive movement was started that has completely checked the German drive, and which has hemmed them in on two sides, with the River Yser behind and a solid defensive before them. A part of their forces are said to have been cut off by flying columns of French infantry, with a tremendous loss of life and many prisoners to the Germans. In fact, the number of killed and wounded in the great Flanders contest is far greater than either at the battle of the Aisne or the Marne. Sunday's conflicts were characterized by many bayonet charges, in which the French and British more than sustained their reputation, never failing to gain ground after their heart-breaking rushes in the face of a destroying fire from rifles and machine guns.

From Ypres to Roulers an action only less violent than that between Dixmude and Nieuport is under way. It is significant that all four of the towns named and all cardinal points, are held by the allies.

Lille is another vortex in the kaleidoscopic battle front. Here the Germans have fought with desperate re-

Meadows Are Piled With Dead.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—"The position on the coast is stationary this morning," says a Daily Mail despatch from Flushing, Netherlands, under date of Sunday. "There is less firing and it is more to the southward."

"The German losses are frightful. Three meadows near Ostend are heaped with dead. The wounded are now installed in private houses in Bruges, where large wooden sheds are being rushed up to receive additional injured. Thirty-seven farm wagons, containing a convulsive mass of wounded, dying and dead, passed in one hour near Middlekerke."

THE FIRST TEACUPS.

They Had No Handles, and Saucers Were Used as Covers.

In the middle of the seventeenth century tea was introduced into England, and with it came the Chinese or "china" teacup. Strangely enough, the men who imported it from the orient did not themselves understand the method of its use.

The Chinese put a pinch of tea into a large cup without a handle, filled it with boiling water and then inverted a saucer over the receptacle, within whose rim it closely fitted. The object was partly to retain the heat, but chiefly to prevent the escape of the fragrance of the herb, which the Chinese found most delicious. The infusion was permitted to stand for five minutes, when it was decanted into a second cup without a saucer and daintily sipped.

John Bull, however, emphatically declined to take his tea in Chinese fashion. He liked the appearance of the ornamental ware upon his table, but he insisted on placing the cup in the saucer, like a miniature flowerpot, and used it exclusively to drink from, preparing the beverage in a common instead of an individual receptacle.

In course of time England began the manufacture of cups and saucers, and pictures which have been preserved from the days of the Stuarts show big, flaring cups, four inches across the top, with saucers less than three inches in diameter. By degrees one dwindled and the other expanded, until in the middle of the nineteenth century the opposite extreme was reached, and fashionable tea services had cups only an inch and a half in diameter, accompanied by five inch saucers.

The handle of the teacup came from Mediterranean lands. Originally it was made of thick and strong earthenware and applied to heavy jars and lamps. Its decorative possibilities popularized it with Greek and Roman potters, who extended its use to small amphora and flagons; but, as the word "amphora" indicates, the handle was double. Single handles crept into use by slow degrees and were probably applied to drinking cups about the time that coffee came into vogue in southern Europe, the beverage being taken almost at the boiling point, so that some device for lifting the cup without burning the fingers was found desirable.—London Tatler.

"But, sir," said the astounded Rosecrans, "I want you to consider yourself under arrest now."

"Of course I do," responded Willich promptly, "and just as soon as this fight is over I'll see that the matter is arranged."

"But, sir," expostulated the commanding general, "I can't let you go into this fight. You are under arrest. I will assign an officer to your brigade."

"You send an officer to command my boys!" cried Willich indignantly. "He can't command them! They don't know him! They know me—I can teach them. None of my boys would know how to fight or what to do unless I was with them. My boys belong to me. Yes, me, General Willich! I command the brigade, and I must fight the brigade!"

General Rosecrans gave it up. General Willich was requested to return "and fight his boys," which he did most successfully. And that was the end of the matter.—Washington Star.

BECOMING A BRITON.

Easy For Aliens to Acquire Citizenship in England.

A large number of aliens become British subjects every year by taking advantage of the naturalization act. The process of taking out naturalization papers in England is delightfully simple. An application can be put through in a couple of weeks if good and sufficient reasons can be shown, while the average time elapsing between application for a certificate of naturalization and the granting of permission to file the oath of allegiance to the king with the home office, which automatically confers British citizenship, is only about eight weeks.

The naturalization act of 1870 requires that the applicant shall have resided in the United Kingdom at least five years and shall intend, when naturalized, to continue to reside here.

The lease of a house or an apartment is sufficient to establish legal residence. The landlord's word is taken as sufficient proof. The applicant has merely to fill in a blank with the details of his residence and other information and have the facts as to his residence verified by one British subject, while the applicant's respectability and loyalty must be vouched for by others. He then files the application with a £1 fee at the home office.

A special Scotland Yard detective is assigned to inquire into the case and examine all the statements on the ap-

A CANINE TRAGEDY

Trouble Came In Bunches With the Purchase of a Watchdog.

ONE NIGHT OF WILD RUCTION.

It Taught the Battered Master of the Wrecked Home That Under Some Circumstances a Burglar May Be Better Company Than a Mastiff.

"If a man is afraid of burglars," said Quackenbush, "he can't have a better safeguard than a good watchdog."

"But where is he going to get the good watchdog?" inquired Clinkenbeard. "Such animals don't grow on trees, and they are not advertised by department stores."

"Of course, if you go around telling that you are in the market for a watchdog every man who has a chicken killing pup he wants to get rid of will tell you that his critter is just what you are hunting for. But you'll try out a million dogs before you find one that will get down to brass headed nails and do police duty."

"Two or three years ago there was a burglar scare out in our suburb. Several houses had been entered and some false hair and things carried away. So my wife got so nervous she couldn't sleep at night. She was sure some masked bandit would break in and steal the 'What is Home Without a Mother' chromo from over the mantel, and just to give her a sense of security I bought a big mastiff and took him home and chained him to a tree in front of the house."

"Along about 12 o'clock at night that dog got to thinking over his misspent life, and remorse gnawed at his heart-strings, and he began lamenting the past. He had the most bloodcurdling voice I ever heard. Every yell he let out froze the marrow in my bones. He'd begin with a sort of plaintive wail and wind up with a howl that would remind you of a hyena in a graveyard on a rainy night. My wife said the uproar would have to be stopped and I'd better bring the dog into the house. He'd probably be quiet there."

"So I slid into a few rags and went downstairs and into the yard. Just as I approached the dog old Billshaw, who lived next door, opened his bedroom window and threw an old frying pan. Of course he meant it for the dog, but his aim was poor and it caught me in the bread basket and knocked the wind out of me."

"I sat down on the grass and gasped for breath, and a shower of bottles and bootjacks and stove wood came from Billshaw's window, and every blamed item hit me in one place or another. When I finally got my breath I yelled to Billshaw to let up, for he was murdering me, and he said it was just what I deserved for keeping such a menagerie where it would give the whole neighborhood the horrors."

"After I had rubbed my bruises for half an hour I took the dog into the house and went back to bed. I was just dropping off to sleep when I was roused by the all-fired racket. It sounded as though the side of the house was falling in. My wife was shrieking that the dog was upsetting all the furniture and ruining everything. So I went downstairs again, snoring a few passages from Webster's

A BRIDE FROM THE TOMB.

Odd Romance of Benedello Marcello, the Venetian Composer.

Benedello Marcello, one of the most famous Venetian composers, fell in love with a beautiful girl named Leonora Manfrotti, who married Paolo Seranzo, a Venetian noble. She died a short time after her marriage, a victim to the harsh and jealous treatment of her husband.

Her body was laid out in state in one of the churches, and her lover actually succeeded in stealing the corpse and conveying it to a ruined crypt in one of the islands, and here he sat day and night by his lost love, singing and playing to her, as though by the force of his art he could recall her to life.

Leonora had a twin sister, Eliade, who was so like her that her closest friends could scarcely distinguish them. One day Eliade heard a singer in a gondola singing so exquisitely that she traced the gondola to the deserted island, and there she learned later the fate of her sister's corpse and the identity of Marcello. Aided by a servant, Eliade substituted herself for her sister's body, and when Marcello returned and called Leonora to awake he did not ask in vain, for apparently she rose alive from the coffin. Marcello when he found out the delusion was quite satisfied and married Eliade, but his happiness was short lived, as he died a few years afterward.—London Telegraph.

CUT THE ARMY RED TAPE.

Willich Knew His Men and They Knew Him and That Settled It.

There are times when the so called "red tape" of the army gives way under the stress of circumstances. At the battle of Chickamauga General Willich, who was commanding a brigade, incurred the displeasure of General Rosecrans, the commanding general, by some slight omission. General Willich was sent for and informed by the general commanding that he must consider himself under arrest for the present.

"You may leave your sword here," added Rosecrans, "until your case is tried."

"Yes, general, I will consider myself under arrest," was the reply, "and just as soon as this engagement is over, I'll come and fix up the matter."

The lease of a house or an apartment is sufficient to establish legal residence. The landlord's word is taken as sufficient proof. The applicant has merely to fill in a blank with the details of his residence and other information and have the facts as to his residence verified by one British subject, while the applicant's respectability and loyalty must be vouched for by others. He then files the application with a £1 fee at the home office.

A special Scotland Yard detective is assigned to inquire into the case and examine all the statements on the applicant's memorial. Three months is allowed him in which to make his report, but a few weeks usually suffice. If the application is passed another fee of £2 is required. The applicant then has permission to file his oath of allegiance, which concludes the process.—London Tit-Bits.

A Puritan Jury.

That the Puritan fashion of nomenclature produced some very odd results is very generally known. The London Chronicle recalls that James Brome, in his "Travels Over England, Scotland and Wales," published in 1700, gives a copy of a "Jury Return, Made at Rye, Sussex, in the Late Rebellious Troublesome Times."

The names of the twelve good men and true were: Meek Brewer, Graceful Harding, Killis Pimple, Earth Adams, Weepnot Billing, More Fruit Fowler, Hope-for Bending, Return Spelman, Fly Debate Roberts, Stand Fast on High Stringer, Be Faithful Joiner and Fight the Good Fight of Faith White.

The Bishop's Place.

The bishop of London, speaking at the annual meeting of the bishop of London's fund at Grosvenor House, said that churches did not drop down from heaven any more than bishops, though a little girl in his congregation, evidently under that delusion, had recently said to her mother during a tiring sermon: "I am tired now, mother. Can't the bishop go back to heaven?"—London Standard.

Like a Mental Moving Picture.

Baker—People who have been near drowning say that in an instant all the events of their past lives are presented to their mental vision. Barker—I don't believe it. Baker—Why not? Barker—If it were true they wouldn't allow themselves to be rescued.—Life.

Innuendo.

"Is dem you all's chickens?" "Cohese dey's my all's chickens. Whose chickens did you s'pose dey was?"

"I wasn't s'posin' nuffin about 'em. But I will say dat it's mighty lucky dat a chicken won't come a-runnin' an' a-waggin' its tail when its regular owner whistles, same as a dog."—Washington Star.

dering me, and he said it was just what I deserved for keeping such a menagerie where it would give the whole neighborhood the horrors.

"After I had rubbed my bruises for half an hour I took the dog into the house and went back to bed. I was just dropping off to sleep when I was roused by the all-fired racket. It sounded as though the side of the house was falling in. My wife was shrieking that the dog was upsetting all the furniture and ruining everything. So I went downstairs again, quoting a few passages from Webster's Dictionary.

"I had forgotten about the cat when I took the dog into the house. But the dog had discovered the pet and was chasing it through the house, and you never saw such a scene of wreckage. Everything that wasn't nailed down had been overturned, and nearly everything was broken. The gas light was burning, and there was the cat hanging to the gas fixtures and the dog standing on his hind legs trying to reach her.

"My memories of what followed are rather confused. I seem to recall grabbing the dog by the scruff of the neck to take him outdoors, and he bit a sample from my shin, and then we mixed things on the floor. I managed to stuff the pincushion into his mouth so he couldn't bite, and we resorted to Greco-Roman wrestling.

"Then the cat came down from the gas fixture and took a hand and clawed most of my scalp off, and my wife came to the rescue with the poker. She said afterward that she was trying to hit the dog. I reckon I'd have been on ice next day if the neighbors hadn't come in with shotguns and pruning hooks and such things and pried up apart.

"That experience was enough for me. I'd rather have forty burglars on the premises than one watchdog."—Walt Mason in Chicago News.

Stationers.

When pens and ink and other writing materials came into common use a great many years ago they were sold by peddlers from house to house. After awhile a few dealers in writing materials opened stalls and remained stationary at their place of business. To distinguish the two classes of paper sellers the man in the stall was called a stationer, and the goods he sold came to be known as stationery.—Wisconsin State Journal.

Foiled.

A mother of four daughters, one of whom had recently married, cornered an eligible young man in the drawing room. "And which one of my girls do you admire, might I ask?"

"The married one," was the prompt reply.—Argonaut.

The ship, if reached or not, makes great the life.—Browning.

Francis Bacon.

The death of Francis Bacon was caused by his devotion to the cause of research and scientific investigation. During one of his excursions to the country he conceived the idea that animal substances may be preserved by means of snow. He procured a fowl and conducted the experiment himself. A severe cold was the result, and in his already enfeebled condition he was not able to withstand it and died of what we now know as bronchitis April 9, 1626, aged sixty-five, at the home of Lord Arundel. He was buried in St. Michael's church, St. Albans.

PASTOR RUSSELL

sign of the end of the Age, but that the prevalence of earthquakes since the beginning of the twentieth century properly enough attracted attention to what the Scriptures say upon this subject. His text is a part of the Master's description of the trouble to come upon the world at the close of this Gospel Age, preparatory to the inauguration of the Millennium.

The Master was answering a question asked by His disciples respecting the signs which would mark the conclusion of the Age. In the context He had replied that they might expect to hear of wars and tumults but that they were not to be terrified for such things would not indicate that the end was near. Then mentioning the events to be expected at the close of the Age—earthquakes, famines, pestilences, etc.—He also declared that His disciple would suffer persecution in the synagogues, churches, etc., for His sake and the Truth's sake.

Fire of This Day Symbolic.

Our Adventist friends have also been calling attention to Scripture predicting great tribulation upon the world in the very near future. The Pastor pointed out the wide difference between his views and theirs. Their message is that the convulsion of nature now due will result in "wreck of matter and a crush of worlds"—in the utter destruction of humanity and the reduction of earth to a mass of cinders. The speaker holds to no ideas. On the contrary he quoted Scriptures to prove that "the earth abideth forever"; that cold and heat, summer and winter will continue as long as the earth abideth; and that God "made not the earth in vain, but formed it to be inhabited."

It was then demonstrated from Scripture that the fire of this Day of the Lord will be symbolic, just as the fiery trials that have tried the Church throughout this Age have generally consisted of literal fire. The fiery troubles coming upon the world will overthrow present institutions and engulf the whole world in anarchy. In the Scriptures this condition is symbolized in some places by a flood, in others by a consuming fire that will devour the whole earth. Then will be established the new heavens and earth—the Messianic Kingdom.

No attempt was made to prognosticate the character of the fearful signs referred to in the text. Attention was called to the fact that the Prophet Joel foretold these signs in Hebrews 12:26-28 St. Paul refers to the same thing. He shows that the wonderful manifestations of Divine Power at the establishment of the Law Covenant at Sinai were typical of the still more wonderful shakings, signs, etc., to be expected at the close of this Gospel Age, when the New Covenant is about to go into effect at the hands of the great Mediator then Moses.

Earthquakes Symbolic of Revolution. St. Paul was quoted as saying the God's Word implies that at this of the end of the Age, but that prevalence of earthquakes since transition period all shakable things will be removed, and only the unshakable things associated with the Kingdom will remain. In the Revelation this shaking is described as a mighty earthquake, the greatest ever known. What we are to expect in fulfillment of Revelation 16:18 is a great revolution, a great shaking of present institutions which will overthrow everything not of the Lord's establishment and approval.

In the Divine order there seems to be a harmony between the literal and the figurative; therefore literal earthquakes have their part in the great Program.

The Scriptures clearly intimate that our earth has not yet attained the grand physical perfection which God designs it to have, in order to be fit for the blessed ones who are to inhabit throughout all eternity. While the faithful Church are to experience a change of nature from human to spiritual, which will prepare them for Heavenly conditions, yet for the remainder of mankind God's provision is different—a restoration to the perfection of human nature which Adam lost and the development of earth to that perfect condition which will make it as a whole the antitype of the Garden of Eden—Paradise restored, to be the everlasting home of a happy race.

The Scriptures teach that God has reserved for the end of this Age certain great physical disturbances necessary to the development of

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better." —Miss AMELIA JAQUILLARD, 3961 Tebouitoulas St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them." —Miss ESTELLA MAGUIRE, 110 Thwing St., St. Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ROYAL ETIQUETTE IN JAPAN.

A Member of the Imperial Family Can Die Only in Tokyo.

Surely there never was a more grim journey made than that of the dowager empress of Japan when she came for the last time to Tokyo.

She had died in her palace in the country. But the Japanese hold that a member of the imperial family can die nowhere except in Tokyo. Therefore the dead empress, theoretically still alive, journeyed from her country place to the palace in Tokyo with all the ceremonial that attended her movements when living.

She traveled in the royal railway car and was driven through the streets to the palace in a court carriage with the blinds closely drawn. The ministers and high state officials who greeted her on her past arrivals in the capital were at the station as usual and showed in no way that on this occasion they were meeting the corpse of the empress.

Troops lined the streets and presented arms as she passed. Only the great crowds in the streets, standing in silence instead of loudly cheering, betrayed the fact that the imperial carriage contained a dead woman.—New York Sun.

Willing Himself Well.

Pastor Russell's text today was, "There shall be great earthquakes in divers places, and famines and pestilences; and fearful sights and great signs shall there be from Heaven."—Luke 21:11.

It is not the Pastor's thought that in itself an earthquake is a sign of the end of the Age, but that the prevalence of earthquakes since the beginning of the twentieth century properly enough attracted his attention to what the Scriptures say upon this subject. His text is a part of the Master's description of the trouble to come upon the world in the close of this Gospel Age, preparatory to the inauguration of the Millennium.

The Master was answering a question asked by His disciples respecting the signs which would mark the conclusion of the Age. In the context He had replied that they might expect to hear of wars and tumults, and that they were not to be terrified for such things would not indicate that the end was near. Then, mentioning the events to be expected at the close of the Age—earthquakes, famines, pestilences, etc.—He also declared that His disciples could suffer "persecution in the synagogues, churches, etc., for His sake and the Truth's sake."

Fire of This Day Symbolic.

Our Adventist friends have also been calling attention to Scriptures predicting great tribulation upon the world in the very near future. The Pastor pointed out the wide difference between his views and theirs. Their message is that the convulsions of nature now due will result in "a reck of matter and a crush of worlds"—in the utter destruction of humanity and the reduction of earth to a mass of cinders. The speaker adds to no ideas. On the contrary, he quoted Scriptures to prove that the earth abideth forever; that cold and heat, summer and winter, will continue as long as the earth abideth; and that God "made not the earth in vain, but formed it to be habited."

It was then demonstrated from Scripture that the fire of this Day the Lord will be symbolic, just as the fiery trials that have tried the church throughout this Age have not really consisted of literal fire. The fiery troubles coming upon the world will overthrow present institutions and engulf the whole world in anarchy. In the Scriptures this condition is symbolized in some places by a flood, in others by a consuming fire that will devour the whole earth. Then will be established the new heavens and earth—the Messianic Kingdom.

No attempt was made to prognosticate the character of the fearful things referred to in the text. Attention was called to the fact that the prophet Joel foretold these signs. Hebrews 12:26-28 St. Paul refers the same thing. He shows that the wonderful manifestations of Divine Power at the establishment of the Law Covenant at Sinai were typical of the still more wonderful shakings, signs, etc., to be expected at the close of this Gospel Age, when the New Covenant is about to go into effect at the hands of the greater High Priest then Moses.

Earthquakes Symbolic of Revolution. St. Paul was quoted as saying that God's Word implies that at this time the faithful Church are to experience a change of nature from human to spiritual, which will prepare them for Heavenly conditions, yet for the remainder of mankind God's provision is different—a restoration to the perfection of human nature which Adam lost and the development of earth to that perfect condition which will make it as a whole the antitype of the Garden of Eden—Paradise restored, to be the everlasting home of a happy race.

The Scriptures teach that God has reserved for the end of this Age certain great physical disturbances necessary to the development of earth in preparation for the Reign of Messiah. Troubles incidental to this change will result in the complete shaking, not only of the physical earth, but also of the social earth and the ecclesiastical, or heavenly institutions, in order that all unstable things may pass away, and that the new order of things may be ushered in on a permanent basis and may have the Divine approval.

CONCEITED JAILBIRDS.

To Have Been In Prison Is a Mark of Culture in Nigeria.

In the land of the Niger, says Mr. P. Amaury Talbot in the London Times, little or no stigma attaches to jailbirds.

In fact, prison residence is often regarded as conferring the mark of culture and distinction. The last governor of Southern Nigeria once complimented a chief of the interior on his knowledge of English, to which the man replied with a proud air: "Of course I be fit to talk English mouth! I learn all that when I live long time for prison."

Such residence is indeed looked upon as giving a sort of official status. At Calabar some prisoners were out cleaning the road when a clerk, dressed in the height of fashion, high collar, patent leather boots and the smartest of suits, went by. In passing he flicked one of the bending laborers with a little swagger cane he was carrying. At once the aggrieved party sprang erect. "What!" he exclaimed, with splendid contempt. "You dare touch me! You factory man! Look-a-me!" Here he pointed to the broad arrows prominently displayed over his simple vest and loin cloth. "I be government man! See here!"

And the dandy passed on thoroughly abashed.

The Fastest Race.

How is it that the Danes as a race are fat? Professor Lyde states that "from one end of Denmark to the other you will not find a really thin man." And he gives rather a quaint reason for it. "The growth of dairy farming in Denmark tends to make men lazy. The private houses adjoin the byres, which are kept at a uniformly warm temperature, and the people are employed in warm buildings, living chiefly on milk and cereals. The men get so lazy that they will not take the trouble to cut up their food." And then comes this delightful conclusion: "This state of things has produced a nation of housewives who excel all others in varieties of sandwiches, which can be munched all day long." And thus is produced the fastest race in Europe, and we get a hint for a real rest cure.—Manchester Guardian.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice butchers' steers at $7.50 to $7.75; good butchers' steers at $7 to $7.25; medium butchers' steers and heifers at $6.50 to $6.75; common butchers' steers and heifers at $6 to $6.25; choice cows at $6.50 to $6.75; good cows at $5.75 to $6.25; canners and cutters at $3 to $4.50; bulls at $5 to $6.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

Choice feeders at $6.50 to $6.75; good feeders at $6.25 to $6.50; stockers at $4 to $5.75.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a good demand, but the number on sale was limited, prices ranging from $60 to $90, the bulk selling at $70 to $80.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were moderate and prices easier. Choice veals, $10; good, $8.50 to $9; medium, $7.50 to $8; common, $6 to $7; inferior, $4 to $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts were moderate and prices about steady. Light ewes, $5 to $6; heavy ewes and rams, $3 to $4; culls, $2.50 to $3; lambs, $7.50 to $7.75, the bulk of the choice selling at $7.50 to $7.65; common lambs at $7 to $7.25; culls at $5.50 to $6.

Hogs.

Prices unchanged. Selected fed and watered at $7.50, and $7.75 weighed off cars, and $7.15 l.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, altho supplies of cattle were increased, a steady feeling prevailed at steady prices. Choice steers sold at $8, and picked lots at $3.25, but the bulk of the trading was done in good steers at $7.50 to $7.75, and fair grades at $7 to $7.50 per cwt. The demand for canning stock was good, bulls selling at $4.75 to $5, and cows at $3.75 to $4.50 per 100 pounds.

The demand was only fair for sheep, ewes selling at $4.75 to $5, and bucks and culls at $4.25 to $4.50 per cwt. Lambs were firmer. Ontario stock selling at $7.25 to $7.50, and Quebec stock at $6.75 to $7 per cwt. Heavy, grass-fed calves for shipment to the United States were in good demand. The demand for milk-fed calves was also good, and sales were made at 7c to 9c per pound, live weight.

A weaker feeling developed in the market for hogs, and prices, as compared with this day's week, show a decline of 50c to 65c per 100 pounds, which makes a net reduction since the first of the month of $1.50. The supply today was only fair, but it was ample to fill all requirements, and sales of selected lots were made at $7.75 to $8, sows at $5.75 to $6, and stags at $3.75 to $4 per cwt, weighed off cars.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 26.—Cattle.—Receipts, 6200 head; choice, steady; prime steers, $9.25 to $10; shipping, $8.25 to $9; butchers, $6.75 to $7.75; heifers, $6 to $7.75; cows, $5.75 to $7; bulls, $5 to $7.25; stockers and feeders, $6 to $7.25; stock heifers, $5 to $5.75.

Hogs.—Receipts, 21,000 head; active; heavy and mixed, $7.75 to $7.85; yorkers, $7.60 to $7.70; pigs, $7.50 to $7.65; roughs, $6.65 to $6.75; stags, $6 to $6.80.

Sheep and lambs.—Receipts, 17,000 head; slow; lambs, $5.50 to $7.85; yearlings, $4.50 to $6.50; wethers, $5.50 to $5.75; ewes, $2.50 to $5.25; sheep, mixed, $5.25 to $5.50.

Carpet Mystery Solved.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—Interesting revelations will, it is said, be made as a result of the successful efforts of the city detective department to trace the mysterious disappearance from the city hall, of a $700 carpet, which originally did duty in the council chamber. Detective Gagnon, who has been engaged on the case for the past few months, at the instance of Mayor Martin yesterday reported that the missing carpet has been found.

of the bowels is an absolute necessity for good health. #### Willing Himself Well.

An interesting example of a man willing himself well is that of "Original" Walker. The thing was the work of a moment. He had been reading Cicero's "De Oratore," and some passage suggested to him the expediency of making the improvement of his health his study. "I rose from my book," he writes, "stood bolt upright and determined to be well. In pursuance of my resolution I tried many extremes, was guilty of many absurdities and committed many errors amid the remonstrances and ridicule of those around me. I persevered, nevertheless, and it is now, I believe, full sixteen years since I have had any medical advice or taken any medicine or anything whatever by way of medicine."—London Chronicle.

Swam Too Long.

The attorneys for the prosecution and defense had been allowed fifteen minutes each to argue the case. The attorney for the defense had commenced his argument with an allusion to the swimming hole of his boyhood days. He told in flowery oratory of the balmy air, the singing birds, the joy of youth, the delights of the cool water. And in the midst of it he was interrupted by the drawing voice of the judge. "Come out, Chawncney," he said, "and put on your clothes. Your fifteen minutes are up."

New York's Public Schools.

Public education in New York city began with the founding of the Free School society in 1805. The society started in a small way, depending for a time upon public subscription. By an act of the legislature in 1842 the board of education was established. The Free School society continued to conduct its schools until 1853, when, by mutual consent, they were all taken over by the board.—New York American.

Distribution of Seed, Grain and Potatoes.

From the Dominion Experimental Farms.

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs.), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.), and field peas (about 5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early; but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealists, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If other wise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

CARE AND ABUSE OF FARM MACHINERY.

Recent investigation by the Conser-

Moosomin, Sask., who, after 12 years, was retiring from the farm, held an auction sale. His binder after cutting 12 crops sold for $80, or 50% of the original cost, and his other machinery at proportionately high prices. It had all been well housed and the necessary painting and repairing had been done to keep it in good order. On a neighboring farm a binder which had cut only three crops, but which had been neglected and had stood out of doors, was being relegated to the scrap heap, and a new one was being purchased.

An implement shed costs money, but if its use will double or treble the length of time the machinery will last, it is a good investment. Farmers often say that they cannot afford to build a shed. The truth is, they really cannot afford to be without one. Apart from the additional power necessary for operation, the depreciation on unboused machinery on the average sized farm is so great as to amount to much more than the cost and upkeep of an implement shed. The binder works for only a short time during the year, while machinery in a shop works the whole year through and lasts proportionately many times longer. It is simply a matter of care. The life of a machine extends in direct ratio to the care it receives, and abuse and neglect will shorten the life of any mechanism. The manufacturer is not responsible for the care of the machinery after it is sold. This rests entirely with the farmer, and as a common-sense business proposition he should look after his own interests sufficiently to house his implements and thus save the thousands of dollars wasted annually in unnecessary depreciation.

CARE AND ABUSE OF FARM MACHINERY.

Recent investigation by the Conservation Commission reveal some very interesting facts regarding the effect of care, or neglect, as the case may be, upon the life of machinery on the farm. Between 90 and 95 farms, divided into three districts, were visited in each of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In Saskatchewan, out of 94 farmers visited by the Commission's representative, 76 leave all their implements out of doors. On 73 of the farms, there were no implement sheds of any description. On 21 of the farms, sheds large enough to cover a part of the implements were found, in most cases this being only a buggy or a democrat but not on one single farm was the machinery all housed. Not one farmer was found who painted his implements to protect them from the weather.

In Manitoba only 14 out of 94 keep their machinery under cover during winter, while 44 claim to keep a part of it inside. On 34 of the Manitoba farms no provision whatever is made for protecting implements, and only four claim to have done any painting.

In three districts visited in Alberta, mixed farming is carried on quite extensively, making more barn room available, so that implements are more likely to be protected, but even here, 37 out of the 92 visited leave all machinery out of doors.

In one district in Ontario where 40 farmers were visited, every man housed his implements during winter, although none of these men do any painting.

In the Ontario district visited where the implements are housed, the average life of the binder was found to be between 16 and 17 years. Many binders were seen which were in good running order after cutting 20 seasons' crops.

In Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where so much of the machinery is left out of doors, the average life of the binder is given by the farmers as 7 years, which is less than half that of that of the binder protected from the weather. Many binders do not last as long as even years. One farmer near

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lane arrive home again from North Bay, where they attended the last illness a burial of Mr. Lane's father, Mr. J. O. Lane, who passed away there at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. E. Bebee, at the ripe old age of 81 years. Deceased was a veteran of the Crimean War, one of the first pioneers in the part of the country, and for about half a century, before his removal to North Bay, a resident here, and many years Postmaster of Denbigh P.O., and one of our most respected citizens.

Chas Petzold, who spent the summer and fall in Saskatoon has arrived home again.

So has Miss Ida Warlich, who enjoyed a month visiting relatives at friends in Ottawa.

Messrs August Kittner and Julie Kittner, senior and junior, of Arrior, who enjoyed a couple of week hunting partridges and visiting friends here have returned to town.

Mr. Wm. Chatsworth of Renfrew formerly proprietor of the Chatworth House, has also enjoyed a couple of weeks' sport and a visit among his relatives and friends here and intends to remain during the open season for deer hunting, but was urgently called home owing to a sudden severe illness of Mrs. Chatsworth.

Miss Emma Kliem left for Cleveland, Ohio, where she intends to spend the winter.

Mr. Richard Glaser of Shoemaker New Ontario, is spending a week or so here on business.

Mr. Alfred John of Belleville, has arrived on a visit to his parents and to enjoy a deer hunt in his native woods.

The long hoped for rural mail delivery route between Denbigh and Cloyne has at last been established with Jos. Rahm as carrier. It will only run once a week leaving Denbigh every Wednesday morning and returning on Thursdays.

Mr. H. D. Bryan of Rochester, N.Y. just arrived on one of his annual visits to Denbigh and is a welcome guest to Mr. and Mrs. P. Stein.

Mrs. (Dr.) Adams also arrived home again from her extended visit to relatives in Kingston and other places.

CONFISCATE THE EDITION.

Newspaper Issues Often Suppressed by the Austrian Censors.

"By order of the 'royal press court' this issue of your paper is hereby confiscated for printing news which the court considers should not be made public." A policeman, with a sword dangling at his side and holding in his hand an official document with an imposing seal on it, enters the managing editor's room and delivers the decree.

It is the famous Austrian press censorship and confiscation machine, called for short the "confiscation apparatus," at work. Down below the big presses are thundering along on the last few thousand copies of a big circulation. It is 3 o'clock in the morning—too late to "make over" by tearing out the offending article or news item, putting something else in its place and reprinting the entire edition.

From the numerous rooms which make up the editorial sanctum there rolls one "Donnerwetter!" and "Verdammt!" after another. The managing editor orders a small sheet, not much larger than a handbill, hastily printed, that will tell the subscribers why they will not receive their paper that morning.

This is a scene which has taken place frequently in Viennese newspaper offices lately. One afternoon recently the editions of five evening papers were confiscated. Probably no editors in the world can tell as many interesting stories of news that never reached their readers as the Viennese.

From an American viewpoint of a free press the Austrian press laws, press censorship and "confiscation apparatus" is about the most absurd and antiquated institution in existence. Apparently it was created largely for the purpose of keeping the truth from the public.

In Austria books, pictures, illustrated catalogues, price lists, handbills, advertisements and advertising literature, newspapers, periodicals and publications which appear occasionally, signs and signboards, posters—in fact, everything that conveys meaning to the mind by means of type, pictures or symbols is subject to censorship. Until recently even private calling or "visiting" cards were subject to censorship. The printer had to lay a proof of a card before the "press court" before he could deliver the order.

Any district or superior court may constitute itself a "press court" to pass upon and order the confiscation of any newspaper in its jurisdiction.—Vienna Cor. New York Tribune.

Archaisms In the Authorized Version.

In the real authorized version of 1611, King James' Bible, are a good many archaisms which the printers have since modernized, such as "ought him a hundred pence," "yer" for "ere," "biles" for "boils," "fet" for "fetched," "gin" for "grin" (a trap), "moe" for "more" and "all to" should be one word at Judges ix, 53, "all to brake his head," where, however, the printers have resisted the temptation to substitute "break." In Psalm cxlv, 3, "Great is the Lord and marvelous, worthy to be praised," there should be no comma after "marvelous," which is an adverb qualifying "worthy." This correction has been made in recent prayer books.—London Saturday Review.

Immigrants and Literacy.

Scandinavians lead the world in point of literacy. Among every twenty German immigrants over fourteen years old is found one illiterate. Of immigrants from other nations it is claimed there is found an illiterate among every twenty-three Dutch, thirty-eight Irish, fifty-two Welsh, fifty-nine Bohemians, seventy-seven Finnish, 100 English and 143 Scottish, but the proportion among those who come from Scandinavia is one in 250. Among the Lithuanian immigrants and those from southern Italy half of them read no language.—Argonaut.

One Letter Names.

O is a village of France, in the commune of Mortree, at a distance of fifteen kilometers from Argentan, itself at a distance of thirty-five kilometers from Alencon. This Norman hamlet has at last accounts twenty-three inhabitants and the proud memory of the extinct marquise of O, which dates back to the crusades. The last marquis, superintendent of the finances of Henri III., lived a spendthrift and died a pauper. Another instance of single letter geography is Y, the arm of the sea which penetrates the Netherlands.

A Wonderful Parrot.

The world's record parrot is owned by Baron Alfred de Rothschild, and he paid for it a record sum. She sings with effect quite a number of songs in a voice like a banjo's twang. She speaks 200 words of German, can answer reasonable queries, smartly rebukes those who ask silly ones and is careful to remind her interlocutors that her full title is "Laura from Africa, please."

A business that has achieved its magnitude or strength as the result of faithful advertising plays itself false if it suspends or ceases its advertising, on the grounds of economy. It is poor business vision which fails to see the principal feeder of business, and fatal judgment which cuts it off or interrupts its flow. Economies may be warranted, but they had better be effected in any other department than in the sales department—the department of revenue. Any course which shoves your customer back from you or hides you from your customer is ruinous. The man with the money needs to be constantly sought. Advertising is the great discoverer of new customers, the great retainer of old ones.

GREEKS LOATHE THE TURKS.

An Incident That Shows How Deep Seated is the Hatred.

The extent to which the Greeks' hatred of the Turks goes is illustrated in "A Child of the Orient," by Demetra Vaka. The author's Aunt Kalliroe was an old Greek woman, whose feelings were the most anti-Turk. She had bought a large Greek homestead, for which she had no use and which she could not at all afford, solely to keep it from falling into the possession of a Turk. The author writes:

"The next time we visited Aunt Kalliroe she was installed in the Spathary homestead. Just within the front door stood a small table, covered with a white linen tablecloth, such as an orthodox Greek woman spun herself for the purpose of putting on the table where the ikons were laid—a tablecloth always washed by the mistress herself in a basin kept apart from the other dishes. On the table lay a Greek ikon, a brass candlestick holding three candles, all burning, and a brass incense burner, from which a column of blue smoke was rising, filling the house with the odor of incense.

"Why, it isn't Easter, and it isn't Christmas!" I cried. "It isn't even a great saint's day. Why are you burning the candles and the incense, great-aunt?"

"They have been burning since I moved into this house, and they shall burn for thrice forty days, to cleanse it from Turkish pollution."

"But since Baky Pasha never bought it and never lived in it—"

"No, but a Turk coveted it, and that is enough to pollute a Christian home."

Good Word For Religion.

This is a broad minded age, and the gentleman on the last tram, who was in what one may define as the talkative stage, shared the characteristics of the times. "I've nothin' to say against 'im even if he does belong to a P. S. A. I'm no bigot, not a bit of it. An' I say this—that, considerin' all things, I've not found these religious chaps to be worse than ordinary fellows like you an' me."—Manchester Guardian.

Planning a Future.

"Do you think you can support my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed?"

"Yes," replied the slangy young man after some hesitation. "But don't you think I'd better stick around with your family a few years so as to get accustomed to it?"—Washington Star.

Nothing Doing.

"Can I interest you in an attachment for your typewriter?" asked the agent as he entered the office.

"No chance," replied Mr. Grouch. "I'm still paying alimony on the strength of the attachment I had for my last typewriter."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

LIGHT UNATTENDED.

Platte Fougere Beacon Is Unique
Among Marine Guides.

What is declared to be the only unattended lighthouse built on a wave-washed rock, possessing a powerful fog-signal, is the recently completed Platte Fougere Lighthouse, marking the entrance to the Russell Channel leading to the Guernsey capital of St. Peter's Port, a spot which figures in Victor Hugo's great romance, "The Toilers of the Sea." This unattended tower, built of ferro-concrete, which rises on a wave-washed rock, is 80 feet in height. The head of the rock on which it stands is only visible at low tide, while it is difficult to approach even in the smoothest weather, owing to tides and currents. Much of the foundation work had to be carried out under water.

The tower, says The Sphere, is solid for a height of 46 feet above the rock, and the base is formed of Portland cement placed in iron moulds with iron bars driven into the solid rock to anchor the concrete firmly. On the side to which the building is exposed to the heaviest seas, massive beams of rolled steel are driven into the rock so as to impart additional strength to the part of the tower where the greatest strains are likely to be set up.

On the entrance level is a compartment containing an electric motor and air-compressor, while on the floor immediately above is a duplicate installation. The siren projects through the top of the tower, the trumpet being so turned as to throw the sounds in a horizontal direction over the water.

On the top of the tower is a small automatic acetylene-gas plant and light. The foghorn has been heard thirty miles away on the French coast, while the light is brought into being at sunset and extinguished at dawn automatically.

These devices, many of which are the invention of the engineer-in-chief, Mr. E. O. Catford, are controlled from the shore station one and a quarter miles distant, by means of a submarine cable made specially for the work. This cable is 11 inches in diameter, and weighs forty-five tons to the nautical mile.

The tower and its installation cost $68,000, a sum five or six times less than that which would have been needed for an ordinary stone structure.

FEATS WITH THE CAMERA.

Difficult to Snap Fast Moving Objects at a Given Point.

Only an expert, and he only after much practice, can take a photograph of a rapidly moving object at a predetermined point—for example, an express train with the cowcatcher just at a white chalk mark on a tie or a baseball at the instant the bat strikes it.

The reason for this is twofold: First, there is a certain appreciable time between the mental decision to do a thing and the actual doing of it; second, it takes a certain appreciable time for the impulse given by pressing the button or squeezing the bulb of a camera to travel to the shutter and open it. The latter may in a very fine camera be only one-fiftieth of a second, but even the fiftieth of a second in a train going 100 feet a second would mean a difference of two feet.

C. H. Claudy in an article in the Camera says that not more than once in four attempts will even an expert catch the precise instant he is seeking. The average man snaps his camera at the moment the ball is striking the club or racquet, and by the time his shutter has worked the ball has gone. A tennis ball travels nearly a mile a minute when struck hard. That is ninety-six feet a second, so in a lag of one-tenth of a second between the pressing of the button and the opening of the shutter the ball will move nearly ten feet, and ordinary cameras work no faster than this. So one need not wonder if even experts fail.

CLOUD FORMATIONS.

What We Know About Them Seems to Be Mainly Guesswork.

Many scientists have told us how clouds are made. Most of the textbooks on physical geography tell all about them, but it is all guesswork. Clouds are a mystery. It is true they are composed of moisture floating in the air, but how did the moisture get there?

It is held that particles of moisture are evaporated from the earth's surface by the heat of the sun. This moisture does not form into clouds immediately. Indeed, the passage of the moisture from the earth to the upper air is quite invisible. It was formerly supposed that this moisture was condensed by the cold of the upper air into rain droplets, which formed the clouds.

But scientists hold that the tiny particles must have something to condense upon. They used to tell us that the moisture collected upon dust particles to form into rain drops. Now they are practically agreed that it is something else, but they don't know what.

Anyway, when these drops get large enough they accumulate into vapor, forming clouds. When the droplets get too large and heavy to float in the air they fall to the earth in the form of rain, and this is about all we actually know about clouds.—War Cry.

When Seals Were Food.

The gray seal used to serve Cornishmen as an article of diet. Stephen Hawker tells how he and a brother clergyman, having asked a landlady at Boscastle what she could give them for dinner, were told "Meat and tates." They tried to get her to particularize the invention of the engineer-in-chief, Mr. E. O. Catford, are controlled from the shore station one and a quarter miles distant, by means of a submarine cable made specially for the work. This cable is 11 inches in diameter, and weighs forty-five tons to the nautical mile.

The tower and its installation cost $68,000, a sum five or six times less than that which would have been needed for an ordinary stone structure.

Confessions.

The woman begged the bachelor girl not to go yet awhile. She was so urgent that the girl finally sat down again. Then the two sat perfectly still and silent, looking at each other.

"I know what you are thinking," said the bachelor girl by and by.

"What?" asked the woman.

"That, now you've got me to stay, you wonder why it was you insisted so. You don't know what to do with me or to say to me, now I'm here to stay."

"How did you guess it?" the woman laughed.

"I've felt just that way myself," said the bachelor girl, "many and many a time."

The Red Sea.

In the Red Sea reefs of bright pink coral are clearly to be seen. Much of the rocky bed of this sea is the work of the coral insect. But probably the true reason for the name of the Red Sea is because along its eastern shore lies ancient Edom. This word signifies "red." It was given to the region not from the color of its sandstone hills, but from its people. These are the descendants of him who came in faint and weary from hunting and said to his brother, "Feed me, I pray thee, with that same red pottage, for I am faint"; therefore was his name called Edom.

The Facile Mexican.

In the opening paragraph of one of his best stories Kipling wrote: "Let it be clearly understood that the Russian is a delightful person till he tucks his shirt in. As an oriental he is charming. It is only when he insists on being treated as the most easterly of western peoples that he becomes a radical anomaly, extremely difficult to handle. The host never knows which side of his nature is going to turn up next." There is a somewhat similar difficulty with the Mexican. He can be charming, but one never knows whether he is the most northern southerner or the most southern northerner, and he can change from one to the other with a facility that is almost genius.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Studied It Out.

One day two farm laborers were discussing the wisdom of the present generation. Said the first:

"We be wiser than our fathers was, and they were wiser than their fathers was."

The second one, after pondering a while and gazing at his companion, replied:

"Well, Garge, what a fule thy grandfather must 'a' been!"—London Express.

Wise In One Way.

"I don't want to brag about myself. I've done many foolish things in my time, but I've been wise in one way."

"What's that?"

"I never had the idea that I could paper a bedroom myself!"—Detroit Free Press.

get too large and heavy to float in the air they fall to the earth in the form of rain, and this is about all we actually know about clouds.—War Cry.

When Seals Were Food.

The gray seal used to serve Cornishmen as an article of diet. Stephen Hawker tells how he and a brother clergyman, having asked a landlady at Boscastle what she could give them for dinner, were told "Meat and tates." They tried to get her to particularize the meat, but "Meat, nice, wholesome meat, and tates" was the full extent of her information. When the meat was served it tasted like veal, but was unaccompanied by any vestige of bone that might have enabled the diners to infer its origin. Years afterward Hawker lighted on the nature of the "meat" when he read in an old history of Cornwall that "the people of Boscastle do catch divers young soyles, which, doubtful if they be fish or flesh, conynge housewives will nevertheless roast and do make thereof savory meat."—London Graphic.

HYGIENE IN THE DESERT.

Our Latter Day Methods Were an Open Book to Moses.

Nothing under the sun is new. Facts have proved that even the plitch which hygiene has reached at the present day was equaled and in many instances excelled under the laws of Moses.

The particular and careful manner in which animals are slaughtered according to the laws of the Talmud is acknowledged today to be the most sanitary method possible.

Professor Koch gave to the world the valuable results of his investigations in bacteriology, but several thousand years before that the Mosale law pointed out the danger to humanity from tuberculosis in cattle, but did not forbid poultry as food. It was not many years ago that specialists discovered that fowl tuberculosis was harmless to man.

The yearly exodus to the country and seaside is no new innovation. Moses, the great lawgiver, prescribed not only feasting at certain seasons of the year, but the removal of whole families to great camping grounds in the open spaces, where they could live near to nature.

A Chinaman on the Opium Habit.

In the American Magazine appears an article entitled "A Modern Opium Eater," written by a newspaper man, who became a victim of the habit and is now a convict in a penitentiary. In the course of the article the author quotes as follows what a Chinese den keeper said to him about the power of the habit to hold its victims:

"You no quit. Every man alleetime say be quit. Every man alleetime you. Smoke-one time, smoke two time, smoke tlee time, then smoke alleetime. Chineman, white man, chokquay (negro) alleesame. No can quit. Bimeby you die you quit. Bimeby maybe you bloke—no more money, no more fiend bollow money, no can stealem money, maybe you quit one, two days. Bimeby maybe you go jail, no got fiend bling you hop, no got money givem policeman catchem hop, you quit. You got money, no go jail, you no quit. I heap saba. Bimeby you see."

Copeland's Cure For Consumption

WINS CONFIDENCE BY ITS WONDERFUL CURATIVE POWERS.

MR. W. R. COPELAND.

Dear Sir—Now that I am well and strong again, I write to state that the fact I am alive today witnesses to the merit of your medicine.

My doctor, a specialist, said that I had the worst kind of consumption and that it was impossible for me to live. He gave me only eight to ten days before the disease would terminate fatally. He also said that it was no use in treating me, as I was too far gone.

I was left to die, but a friend or mine told me about your medicine and procured me a bottle. Without much hope, I tried it. It did wonders. First the weakening perspiration stopped and the food I took stayed in the stomach. After a second bottle, I commenced to regain my appetite and was up in a few days of the time that the doctor said I should die. Five weeks later I was at work and have been working ever since.

I wish everyone could know the worth of your medicine, especially those afflicted with consumption as I was, for I undoubtedly owe my life to its use. I will at all times cheerfully answer any correspondence, and you are at liberty to publish this letter if you think it will help to recommend your medicine to others.

I remain, Gratefully yours,
DAVID WARNOCK, Street Car Conductor,
202 Withrow Ave., Toronto.

The remarkable power of this medicine marks it as one of the greatest discoveries of this century. Its power is only just started, but it is safe to say that its popularity will grow world-wide.

It is a blessing, as all who have used it testify. To the real "down-and-out" consumptive, the chronic sufferers from bronchial and lung troubles—it is something more than a blessing. To them it means the difference between happiness and misery, and sometimes life instead of a grave.

It is a medicine that is honest. No false claims are made for it. It is good, most beneficially good for the ailments specified above. These, even consumption, it will tackle, fight and OVERCOME. If you have a bad cough or cold—take this medicine. If you are a consumptive—take this medicine, for a greater medicine for consumption has NEVER BEEN KNOWN. If you are troubled with bronchitis and can't sleep at night for coughing—take this medicine. Your trouble will become a memory. If your throat or lungs are in any way weak or sensitive—take this medicine—and they will become strong and normal.

Cavities heal under its benign influence. Congestion is freed by its action to remove phlegm until the lungs are clear and work naturally without pain or distress. Emaciation, night sweats, poor appetite, inability to retain food in the stomach—all these effects of disease are mastered and the system built up under its curative and nourishing powers. Ask your druggist, or send direct to us. Price, $1.00 per bottle. Testimonials of many others can be had on request.

POOR SHOW FOR GERMANY TO GET INTO DOMINION

British Navy as Canada's Safeguard—
New York World Wonders What Imp
Tempted German Ambassador to Talk of Invasion.

New York, Oct. 27.—Commenting on the suggestion of Count Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to the United States, that the Kaiser's forces may attack and occupy Canada, the New York Herald, in a short editorial this morning says:

"Just what Count Bernstorff can hope to gain by spreading in this country the suggestion that Germany may attack and occupy Canada it is difficult to understand. Can he imagine that Americans are so enamored of German 'kultur,' as exemplified in Belgium, that they would welcome its appearance on this continent?"

"It would seem that the first rule of a German diplomacy bending its energies to create a favorable American public sentiment would be to let that particular 'sleeping dog lie.' If there is one thing more calculated than any other to make Americans give ear to the foolish talk of those persons who would have the United States break its neutrality and give all its aid and comfort to the Allies, it is the picture Count von Bernstorff paints of German armies 'hacking their way' in Canada.

"Dr. Dernburg, second in command of the German publicity propaganda, rushes to the fore with the assurance that Germany's love for the Monroe doctrine is so great that it would never contemplate the invasion of Canada. Can Dr. Dernburg expect the American people to attach any more value to his assurances than the German Government does to its treaties?"

"The only possible effect of Dr. Dernburg's disclaimer is to focus attention on the von Bernstorff picture—and to make Americans do a lot of thinking."

GERMANY HAS NO CHANCE.

The New York World says:

hardly conceivable that Germany should take any such step as invading Canada or any other part of the western continent.

"Monroe Doctrine or no Monroe Doctrine, belligerent rights and neutral rights or not, it would be the most inexpedient thing conceivable."

GERMANY HOPES WAR WILL GIVE CANADA TO HER

English Diplomat Says Germany is Throwing Covetous Eyes on Dominion and not on South America—Bernstorff likely to be Expressing Real Intentions.

London, Oct. 27.—"German Designs by Count Bernstorff." These are upon Canada." "Another indiscretion typical headlines applied to the Count's latest emission.

An English diplomat, discussing the situation, says:—
"Of course, Bernstorff is right. Canada is at war with Germany in every sense of the word. Germany has as much right to land troops in Canada as Canada has to send troops to Europe against Germany, but the Canadians are not likely to lose their sleep. Bernstorff's two words, 'if possible,' mean so much.

"If Germany cannot think seriously of landing troops in England how can she hope to evade the British fleet upon the Atlantic.

"But putting together the statements of Bernstorff and Dernburg what other conclusion can Canadians draw about German policy than that if British sea supremacy once is overthrown, it will be upon Canada and not South America that Germany will set the most covetous eyes."

As the great Bernhardt said, years ago, Germany dreams of overseas territories nearer home than Brazil and climatically better suited to German settlers. Dernburg kindly promises Canada immunity because of the Monroe Doctrine, but, after all, a purely national declaration like the Monroe Doctrine is a far smaller scrap of paper than the solemn international-

Mines are Laid Off North of Ireland

Liverpool, Oct. 27.—The Admiralty has warned ship owners that the Germans have succeeded in laying mines around the north of Ireland, and that ships should, therefore, not pass within sixty miles of Tory Island. It is considered probable that it was one of these mines that the British steamer, Manchester Commerce struck.

The rising in the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, headed by General Christian De Wet, Minister of Agriculture in the Orange River Colony, and General Christian F. Beyers, Speaker of the Transvaal Assembly, may prove a much more serious affair than Maritz's fiasco in the Cape. De Wet and Beyers are big men. When the present war broke out Beyers was Commandant-General of the citizen forces of the Union of South Africa. Both asked him to mobilize the Boers for operations in German Southwest Africa. He refused, and some very warm correspondence between him and the members of the Government followed. Beyers had a unique experience during the South African war, which he entered as a private in Kruger's army, and from which he emerged after some brilliant exploits as Assistant Commandant-General in the Northern Transvaal. De Wet also had a war record that insured his popularity among the burghers of the Orange River Colony.

their way in Canada. "Dr. Dernburg, second in command of the German publicity propaganda, rushes to the fore with the assurance that Germany's love for the Monroe doctrine is so great that it would never contemplate the invasion of Canada. Can Dr. Dernburg expect the American people to attach any more value to his assurances than the German Government does to its treaties? "The only possible effect of Dr. Dernburg's disclaimer is to focus attention on the von Bernstorff picture—and to make Americans do a lot of thinking."

GERMANY HAS NO CHANCE.

The New York World says: "What imp of perversity tempted the German Ambassador to raise the issue of the Monroe doctrine and assert Germany's right to invade Canada? "It is true that technically there is nothing in the Monroe doctrine that would necessarily interfere with the landing of German troops in Canada, provided Germany did not try to hold territory. That is a matter that would have to be determined by circumstances. It is one of those cases in which, as Secretary Olney said: 'Our fiat is law.' But why should Count Von Bernstorff undertake to discuss the question at all? "As long as the British Navy is afloat, Germany has no more chance of invading Canada than she has of invading the moon. For all practical purposes the Ambassador might as profitably discussed the advantages of Mars as a signalling station to direct the fire of the German heavy artillery in the siege of Petrograd. Politically, we can think of no other question which is more certain to arouse American suspicion and irritation than this.

A DUBIOUS OCCASION.

"The German attitude towards the Monroe doctrine has always left a great deal to be desired from an American point of view. German political writers have habitually treated the Monroe doctrine as a piece of contemptible Yankee impudence, and this is rather a dubious occasion for a German diplomatist to raise hypothetical questions as to the extent and application of the Doctrine in a hypothetical campaign against Canada.

"Should German troops ever invade Canada, the application of the Monroe doctrine to the specific case will be defined in Washington, not in Berlin."

LACKS DIPLOMACY.

The New York American sarcastically says:

"If the German Ambassador really holds this theory, it would have been the part of diplomacy for him to keep it discreetly to himself. It will not add to his popularity in this country.

"We trust the Count will not supplement his interesting remarks on Canada and the Monroe doctrine with the proposition that should Germany wish to invade Canada the Belgian precedent would afford ample justification for marching her troops through New England."

WOULD BE INDEPENDENT.

The Journal of Commerce says: "It can hardly be deemed a tactful suggestion of the German Ambassador that there will be no violation of the Monroe Doctrine if Germany should land troops in Canada, inasmuch as that British Dominion is participating in the war against the German Empire by furnishing men and supplies to the British army. "Probably the Monroe Doctrine would have nothing to do with the case, and perhaps there would be no breach of that extremely indefinite and uncertain thing, international law, or any violation of anybody's neutral rights. Nevertheless, it is

"But putting together the statements of Bernstorff and Dernburg what other conclusion can Canadians draw about German policy than that if British sea supremacy once is overthrown, it will be upon Canada and not South America that Germany will set the most covetous eyes."

As the great Bernhardt said, years ago, Germany dreams of overseas territories nearer home than Brazil and climatically better suited to German settlers. Dernburg kindly promises Canada immunity because of the Monroe Doctrine, but, after all, a purely national declaration like the Monroe Doctrine is a far smaller scrap of paper than the solemn international treaty such as guaranteed the neutrality of Belgium.

"Bernstorff is much more likely to be reflecting the real German intentions, wholly vain though they are."

Allies Advacne Near Dixmude : Drive Enemy Over Frontier

Paris, Oct. 27.—A very brief official statement was issued to-night by the French War Office regarding the great battle which is in progress in Belgium and northern France. The text follows:—

"There is nothing to report except some progress on our part in the region to the south of Dixmude."

The official statement issued this afternoon says:—

"The fighting continues to be particularly spirited between the mouth of the Yser and the region of Lens. In this part of the front the Allied forces have at no time drawn back, and they have continued to make progress in the regions between Ypres and Roulers. In the general region between Soissons and Betty-au-Bac an artillery engagement resulted in our advantage, and caused the destruction of several batteries of the enemy."

"In the region to the east of Nancy, between the forest of Bezange and the forest of Parroy, we have assumed the offensive and driven the enemy across the frontier."

THE GERMAN REPORT.

Berlin (via Amsterdam and London) Oct. 27.—General Headquarters under date of October 27, announces:—

"The battle of the Yser Canal, near Ypres and southwesterly from Lille, is proceeding with the same stubbornness. Yesterday the German troops made progress."

"On the other battle-front in the western theatre no important events have occurred."

The Story of Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Copyright, 1915, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

"He spread his arms full wide abroad
His works are ever before his God.
His name on earth shall long remain,
Though envious glimmers fret in vain.

"We are certain," concluded Ivory, "that my father preached with Cochrane in Limington, Limerick and Parsonsfield. He also wrote from Enfield and Effingham in New Hampshire. After that all is silence. Various reports place him in Boston, in New York, even as far west as Ohio, whether as Cochrane evangelist or what not, alas! we can never know. I despair of ever tracing his steps. I only hope that he died before he wandered too widely, either from his belief in God or his fidelity to my mother's long suffering love."

Waitstill read the letter twice through and replaced it in her dress to read again at night. It seemed the only tangible evidence of Ivory's love that she had ever received and she warmed her heart with what she felt that he had put between the lines.

"Would that I were free to tell you how I value your friendship!" "My mother's heart feeds on the sight of you!" "I want you to know something of the circumstances that have made me a prisoner in life instead of a free man." "Yours is the most undaunted heart in all the world!" These sentences Waitstill rehearsed again and again and they rang in her ears like music, converting all the tasks of her long day into a deep and silent joy.

CHAPTER XVII.

At the Brick Store.

THERE were two grand places for gossip in the community, the old tavern on the Edgewood side of the bridge and the brick store in Riverboro. The company at the Edgewood tavern would be a trifle different in character, more picturesque, imposing and eclectic because of the transient guests that gave it change and variety. Here might be found a judge or a lawyer on his way to court, a shabby fellow with a handcuffed prisoner, a farmer or two stopping on the road to market with a cartful of produce and an occasional teamster, peddler and stage driver. On winter nights chamberlain story tellers like Jed Merrill and Rish Bixby would drop in there and hang their woolen neck comforters on the pegs along the wall side, where there were already hats, topcoats and fur mufflers, as well as stacks of whigs, canes and oxgangs standing in the corners. They would then enter the room, rubbing their hands genially and, nodding to Companion Pike, Cephus Cole, Phil Perry and others, ensconce themselves snugly in the group by the great open fireplace. The mud-stained boots were always glad mending clocks and so many an old timepiece still bears his name, with the date of repairing written in pencil on the inside of the door.

There was never any lack of subjects at the brick store, the idiosyncrasies of the neighbors being the most prolific source of anecdote and comment. Whenever all else failed there was always the latest story of Deacon Baxter's parsimony, in which the village traced the influence of heredity.

"He can't hardly help it, inheritin' it on both sides," was Abel Day's opinion. "The Baxters was allers snug from time memorial, and Foxy's the snuggest of 'em. When I look at his ugly mug an' hear his snarl'n voice I thinks to myself, he's goin' the same way his father did. When old Levi Baxter was left a widder man in that house o' his'n up river he grew wuss an' wuss, if you remember, till he wa'n't hardly human at the last, and I don't believe Foxy even went up to his own father's funeral."

"'Twould a served old Levi right if nobody else had gone," said Rish Bixby. "When his wife died he refused to come into the house till the last minute. He stayed to work in the barn till all the folks had assembled and even the men were all settin' down on benches in the kitchen. The parson sent me out for him, and I'm blest if the old skunk didn't come in through the crowd with his sleeves rolled up—went to the sink and washed, and then set down in the room where the coffin was, as cool as a cucumber."

"I remember that funeral well," corroborated Abel Day. "An' Mis' Day heerd Levi say to his daughter, as soon as they'd put poor old Mrs. Baxter in' the grave, 'Come on, Marthy; there's no use cryin' over split milk; we'd better go home an' husk out the rest o' that corn.' Old Foxy could have inherited plenty o' meanness from his father, that's certain, an' he's added to his inheritance right along, like the thrifty man he is. I hate to think o' them two fine girls wearin' their fingers to the bone for his benefit."

"Oh, well, 'twon't last forever," said Rish Bixby. "They're the han'somest

"I remember that funeral well."

couple o' girls on the river, an' they'll get husbands afore many years. Patience'll have one pretty soon, by the looks. She never budges an inch but

"That's so. Well, Ivory does for certain, an' takes after his mother, right enough, for she hain't spoken a dozen words in as many years, I guess. Ivory's got a sight o' book knowledge, though, an' they do say he could talk Greek an' Latin both, if we had any of 'em in the community to converse with. I've never paid no intepion to the dead languages, bein' so ockerpiled with other studies."

"Why do they call 'em the dead languages, Tim?" asked Rish Bixby.

"Because all them that ever spoke 'em has perished off the face o' the land," Timothy answered oracularly. "Dead an' gone they be, lock, stock and barrel; yet there was a time when Latins an' Crustaceans an' Hebrews an' Prooshians an' Australlians an' Simlesians was chatterin' away in their own tongues, an' so pow'ful that they was wallop'n' the whole earth, you might say."

"I bet fer they never tried to wallop these here United States," interpolated Bill Dunham from the dark corner by the molasses hoghead.

"Is Ivory in here?" The door opened and Rodman Boynton appeared on the threshold.

"No, sonny, Ivory ain't been in this evenin'," replied Ezra Simms. "I hope there ain't nothin' the matter over to your house?"

"No, nothing particular," the boy answered, "only Aunt Boynton don't seem so well as common, and I can't find Ivory anywhere."

"Come along with me, I'll help you look for him, an' then I'll go as far as the lane with yer if we don't find him." And kindly Rish Bixby took the boy's hand and left the store.

"Mis' Boynton's had a spell, I guess!" suggested the storekeeper, peering through the door into the darkness. "Tain't like Ivory to be out nights and leave her to Rod."

"She don't have no spells," said Abel Day. "Uncle Bart sees consid'able of Ivory, an' he says his mother is as quiet as a lamb. Couldn't you git no kind of a certificate of Aaron's death out o' that Enfield feller, Peter? Seems 's if that poor woman oughter be stopped watchin' for a dead man; tucker in herself all out an' keepin' Ivory an' the boy all nerved up."

"I've told Ivory everything I could gather up in the way of information and give him the names of the folks in Ohio that had writ back to New Hampshire. I didn't dilate on Aaron's goin's on in Effingham and Portsmouth, 'cause I dassay 'twas nothin' but scandal. Them as hates the Cochrane's'll never allow there's any good in 'em, whereas I've met some as is servin' the Lord good an' constant an' indulgin' in no kind of foolishness an' deviltry whatsoever."

"Speakin' o' Hushshons," said Bill Dunham from his corner, "I remember—"

"We wa'n't alludin' to no Hushshons," retorted Timothy Grant. "V'e was dealin' with the misfortunes of Aaron Boynton, who never fit valorously on the field o' battle, but perished out in Ohio of scarlit fever, if what they say in Enfield is true."

"'Tis an easy death," remarked Bill argumentatively. "Scarlit fever don't seem like nothin' to me! Many's the time I've been close enough to fire at the eyeball of a Hushshon an' run the risk o' bein' blown to smithereens!—calm and cool I allers was too! Scarlit fever is an easy death from a warrior's pint o' view!"

"Speakin' of easy death," continued Timothy, "you know I'm a great one picked up so much larnin', Timothy! It was Abel Day's exclamation, but every one agreed with him.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Rod That Blossomed.

IVORY BOYNTON had taken the horse and gone to the village on an errand, a rare thing for him to do after dark, so Rod was thinking as he sat in the living room learning his Sunday school lesson of the same evening that the men were gossiping at the brick store. His aunt had required him from the time when he was proficient enough to do so to read at least a part of a chapter in the Bible every night. Beginning with Genesis, he had reached Leviticus and had made up his mind that the Bible was a much more difficult book than "Scottish Chiefs" notwithstanding the fact that Ivory helped him over most of the hard places. At the present juncture he was vastly interested in the subject of "rods" as unfolded in the book of Exodus, which was being studied by his Sunday school class. What added to the excitement was the fact that his uncle's Christian name Aaron, kept appearing in the chronicle as frequently as that of the great law giver Moses himself, and there were many verses about the wonder working rods of Moses and Aaron that had a strange effect upon the boy's ear when he read them aloud, as he loved to do whenever he was left alone for a time. When his aunt was in the room his instinct kept him from doing this for the mere mention of the name of Aaron, he feared, might sadden his aunt and provoke in her that dangerous vein of reminiscence that made Ivory so anxious.

"It kind o' makes me nervous to be named Rod, Aunt Boynton," said the boy, looking up from the Bible. "All the rods in these Exodus chapters do such dreadful things! They become serpents, and one of them swallows up all the others, and Moses smites the waters with a rod, and they become blood, and the people can't drink the water and the fish die! Then they stretch a rod across the streams and ponds and bring a plague of frogs over the land, with swarms of flies and horrible insects."

"That was to show God's power to Pharaoh and melt his hard heart to obedience and reverence," explained Mrs. Boynton, who had known the Bible from cover to cover in her youth and could still give chapter and verse for hundreds of her favorite passages.

"It took an awful lot of melting, Pharaoh's heart!" exclaimed the boy. "Pharaoh must have been worse than Deacon Baxter! I wonder if they ever tried to make him good by being kind to him! I've read and read, but can't find they used anything on him but plagues and famines and boils and pestilences and thunder and hail and fire! Have I got a middle name, Aunt Boynton, for I don't like Rod very much?"

"I never heard that you had a middle name; you must ask Ivory," said his aunt abstractedly.

"Did my father name me Rod, or my mother?"

"I don't really know. Perhaps it was your mother, but don't ask questions please."

"I forgot, Aunt Boynton! Yes, I think perhaps my mother named me. Mothers 'most always name their babies, don't they? My mother wasn't like you, she looked just like the picture of Pocahontas in my history. She peddler and stage driver. On winter nights champion story tellers like Jed Morrill and Bish Bixby would drop in there and hang their woolen neck comforters on the pegs along the wall side, where there were already hats, top-coats and fur mufflers, as well as stacks of whips, canes and oxgoads standing in the corners. They would then enter the room, rubbing their hands genially and, nodding to Companion Pike, Cephas Cole, Phil Perry and others, ensconce themselves snugly in the group by the great open fireplace. The landlord was always glad to see them enter, for their stories, though old to him, were new to many of the assembled company and had a remarkable effect on the consumption of liquid refreshment.

On summer evenings gossip was handed in the village, and if any occurred at all it would be on the loafers' bench at one or the other side of the bridge. When cooler weather came the group of local wits gathered in Riverboro, either at Uncle Bart's joiner's shop or at the brick store, according to fancy. The latter place was perhaps the favorite for Riverboro talkers. It was a large, two story, square brick building, with a big mouthed chimney and an open fire. When every house in the two villages had six feet of snow around it roads would always be broken to the brick store, and a crowd of ten or fifteen men would be gathered there talking, listening, betting, smoking, chewing, bugging, playing checkers, singing and "swapping stories."

Some of the men had been through the war of 1812 and could display wounds received on the field of valor, others were still prouder of scars won in encounters with the Indians and there was one old codger, a revolutionary veteran, Bill Dunham by name, who would add bloody tales of his encounters with the "Husshons."

"'Tis an awful sin to have on your soul," Bill would say from his place in a dark corner, where he would sit with his hat pulled over his eyes till the psychological moment came for the "Husshons" to be trotted out. "'Tis an awful sin to have on your soul—the extenuation of a race o' men, even if they wa'n't nothin' more'n so many ignorant cockroaches. Them was the great days for fightin'! The Husshons was the biggest men I ever seen on the field, most of 'em standin' six feet eight in their stockin's—but Lord! how we walloped 'em! Once we had a cannon mounted an' loaded for 'em that was so large we had to draw the ball into it with a yoke of oxen!"

Bill paused from force of habit, just as he had paused for the last twenty years. There had been times when roars of incredulous laughter had greeted this boast, but most of this particular group had heard the yarn more than once and let it pass with a smile and a wink, remembering the night that Abel Day had asked old Bill how they got the oxen out of the cannon on that most memorable occasion. "Oh," said Bill, "that was easy enough. We jest unyoked 'em an' turned 'em out o' the primin' hole!"

It was only early October, but there had been a killing frost, and Ezra Simms, who kept the brick store, hung some shavings and small wood on the hearth and lighted a blaze, just to induce a little trade and start conversation on what threatened to be a dull evening. Peter Morrill, Jed's eldest brother, had lately returned from a long trip through the state and into New Hampshire and his adventures by field and flood were always worth listening to. He went about the country couple o' girls on the river, an' they'll get husbands afore many years. Patience 'll have one pretty soon, by the looks. She never budes an inch but Mark Wilson or Phil Perry are follerin' behind, with Cephas Cole watchin' his chance right along too. Waitstill don't seem to have no beau; what with flyin' around to keep up with the deacon an' bein' a mother to Patience, her hands is full, I guess."

"If things was a little mite dif'rent all round I could prognosticate who Waitstill could keep house for," was Peter Morrill's opinion.

"You mean Ivory Boynton? Well, if the deacon was asked he'd never give his consent, that's certain, an' Ivory ain't in no position to keep a wife anyways. What was it you heerd 'bout Aaron Boynton up to New Hampshire, Peter?" asked Abel Day.

"Consid'able, one way an' another, an' none of it would 'n' been any comfort to Ivory. I guess Aaron 'n' Jake Cochrane was both of 'em more interested in savin' the sisters' souls than the brothers'. Aaron was a fine appearin' man, and so was Jake for that matter, 'n' they both had the gift o' gab. There's nothin' like a limber tongue if you want to please the women folks. If report says true, Aaron died of a fever out in Ohio somewhere. Cortland's the place, I b'lieve. Seems 's if he hid his trail all the way from New Hampshire somehow, for as a usual thing a man o' book learnin' like him would be remembered wherever he went. Wouldn't you call Aaron Boynton a turrible l'arned man, Timothy?"

Timothy Grant, the parish clerk, had just entered the store on an errand; but, being directly addressed and judging that the subject under discussion was a discreet one and that it was too early in the evening for drinking to begin, he joined the group by the fire-side. He had preached in Vermont for several years as an itinerant Methodist minister before settling down to farming in Edgewood, only giving up his profession because his quiver was so full of little Grants that a wandering life was difficult and undesirable. When Uncle Bart Cole had remarked that Mis' Grant had a little of everything in the way of baby stock now—black, red an' yaller haired, dark and light complected, fat an' lean, tall an' short, twins an' singles—Jed Morrill had observed dryly, "Yes, Mis' Grant kind o' reminds me of charity."

"How's that?" inquired Uncle Bart. "She beareth all things," chuckled Jed.

"Aaron Boynton was indeed a man of most adhesive learnin'," agreed Timothy, who had the reputation of the largest and most unusual vocabulary in Edgewood. "Next to Jacob Cochrane I should say Aaron had more grandeloquence as an orator than any man we've ever had in these parts. It don't seem 's if Ivory was goin' to take after his father that way. The little feller, now, is smart 's a whip an' could talk the tall off a brass monkey."

"Yes, but Rodman ain't no kin to the Boyntons," Abel reminded him. "He inbails from the other side o' the house."

Boynton, who never fit valorously on the field o' battle, but perished out in Ohio of scarlet fever, if what they say in Enfield is true."

"'Tis an easy death," remarked Bill argumentatively. "Scarlet fever don't seem like nothin' to me! Many's the time I've been close enough to fire at the eyeball of a Husshon an' run the risk o' bein' blown to smithereens!—calm and cool I allers was too! Scarlet fever is an easy death from a warrior's pint o' view!"

"Speakin' of easy death," continued Timothy, "you know I'm a great one for words, bein' something of a scholar in my small way. Maybe you noticed that Elder Boone used a strange word in his sermon last Sunday? Words air curious things sometimes, as I know, bevin' had consid'able leisure time to read when I was joggin' 'bout the country an' bein' brought into contact with men o' learnin'. The way I worked it out, not wishin' to ask Parson any more questions, bein' something of a scholar myself, is this: The youth in Ashy is a peculiar kind o' youth, 'n' their religion disposes 'em to lay no kind o' stress on humin' life. When anything goes wrong with 'em an' they get a set back in war or business, or affairs with women folks, they want to die right off, so they take a sword an' stan' it straight up wherever they happen to be, in the shed or the barn or the henhouse, an' they p'int the sharp end right to their waist line, where the bowels an' other vital organisms is lowcated, an' then they fall on to it. It runs 'em right through to the back an' kills 'em like a shot, and that's the way I cal'late the youth in Ashy dies, if my entomology is correct, as it gen'ally is."

"Don't seem an easy death to me," argued Ezra, "but I ain't no scholar. What college did you attend to, Tim?"

"I don't hold no diploma," responded Timothy, "though I attended the Wareham academy quite a spell, the same time as your sister was goin' to Wareham seminary where eddication is still bein' disseminated though of an awful poor kind compared to the old times."

"It's live an' larn," said the store-keeper respectfully. "I never thought of a seminary bein' a place of dissemination before, but you can see the two words is near kin."

"You can't allers tell by the sound," said Timothy instructively. "Sometimes two words 'll start from the same root an' branch out dif'rent, like 'critter' an' 'hyppocritter'. A 'hyppocritter' must natcherally start by bein' a 'critter', but a critter ain't obliged to be a 'hyppocritter' 'thout he wants to."

"I should hope not," interpolated Abel Day plausibly. "Entomology must be an awful interestin' study, though I never thought of observin' words myself, 'cept to avoid vulgar language an' profanity."

"Husshon's a curious word for a man," interjected Bill Dunham with a last despairing effort. "I remember seein' a Husshon once that!"

"Perhaps you ain't one to observe closely, Abel," said Timothy, not taking note of any interruption, simply using the time to direct a stream of tobacco juice to an incredible distance, but landing it neatly in the exact spot he had intended. "It's a trade by itself, you might say, observin' is, an' there's another sing'lar corruption! The Whigs in foreign parts, so they say, build stone towers to observe the evil machinations of the Tories, an' so the word 'observatory' come into general use! All entomology; nothin' but entomology!"

"I don't see where in thunder vor much?"

"I never heard that you had a milder name; you must ask Ivory," said t'unt abstractedly.

"Did my father name me Rod, or is mother?"

"I don't really know. Perhaps it was your mother, but don't ask questions please."

"I forgot, Aunt Boynton! Yes, think perhaps my mother named n Mothers 'most always name their t bles, don't they? My mother was like you, she looked just like the p ture of Pocahontas in my history. S never knew about these Bible rods guess."

"When you go a little further y will find pleasanter things about rods: said his aunt, knitting, knitting t tently, as was her habit, and talki as if her mind were 1,000 miles awa "You know they were just 'lit branches of trees, and it was or God's power that made them wond ful in any way."

"Oh! I thought they were like t singing teacher's stick he keeps ti with."

"No; if you look at your concordan you'll find it gives you a chapter Numbers where there's somethi beautiful about rods. I have forgot the place. It has been many yea since I looked at it. Find it and re it aloud to me." The boy searched i concordance and readily found the r erence in the 17th chapter of Numbe:

"Stand near me and read," said M Boynton. "I like to hear the Bit read aloud!"

Rodman took his Bible and res slowly and haltingly, but with clea ness and understanding:

"1. And the Lord spake unto Mose saying,

"2. Speak unto the children of Isra and take of every one of them a r according to the house of their fath of all their princes according to t house of their fathers twelve rod write thou every man's name upon h rod."

Through the boy's mind there dart the flash of a thought, a sad thoug He himself was a Rod on whom i man's name seemed to be written, e phan that he was, with no knowled of his parents!

Suddenly he hesitated, for he h caught sight of the name of Aaron the verse that he was about to re and did not wish to pronounce it his aunt's bearing.

"This chapter is most too hard f me to read out loud, Aunt Boynton he stammered. "Can I study it by m self and read it to Ivory first?"

"Go on, go on, you read very swee ly. I cannot remember what com and I wish to hear it."

The boy continued, but without rai ing his eyes from the Bible:

"3. And thou shalt write Aaron name upon the rod of Levi: for one r shall be for the head of the house their fathers."

"4. And thou shalt lay them up the tabernacle of the congregation b fore the testimony, where I will me with you."

"5. And it shall come to pass th the man's rod, whom I shall choos shall blossom: and I will make to cea from me the murmurings of the ch dren of Israel, whereby they murmi against you."

Rodman had read on, absorbed i the story and the picture it presente to his imagination. He liked the ide of all the princes having a rod accor ing to the house of their fathers. E liked to think of the little branch being laid on the altar in the tabe uncle, and above all he thought of the longing of each of the princes to have his own rod chosen for the blossoming.

"Up so much larnin', Timothy!" as Abel Day's exclamation, but one agreed with him.

"6. And Moses spoke unto the children of Israel, and every one of their princes gave him a rod apiece, for each prince one, according to their father's houses, even twelve rods; and the rod of Aaron was among their rods."

Oh! how the boy hoped that Aaron's branch would be the one chosen to blossom! He felt that his aunt would be pleased, too, but he read on steadily, with eyes that glowed and breath that came and went in a very palpitation of interest.

"7. And Moses laid up the rods before the Lord in the tabernacle of witness."

"8. And it came to pass, that on the morrow Moses went into the tabernacle of witness; and behold, the rod of Aaron was budded and brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds."

It was Aaron's rod, then, and was an almond branch! How beautiful, for the blossoms would have been pink; and how the people must have marvelled to see the lovely blooming thing on the dark altar, first budding, then blossoming, then bearing nuts! And what was the rod chosen for? He hurried on to the next verse:

"9. And Moses brought out all the rods before the Lord unto all the children of Israel; and they looked, and took every man his rod."

"10. And the Lord said unto Moses, Bring Aaron's rod again before the testimony to be kept for a token against the rebels; and thou shalt quite take away their murmurings from me, that they die not."

"Oh, Aunt Boynton," cried the boy, "I love my name after I've heard about the almond rod! Aren't you proud that it's uncle's name that was written on the one that blossomed?"

He turned swiftly to find that his aunt's knitting had slipped on the floor; her nerveless hands drooped by her side, as if there were no life in them, and her head had fallen against the back of her chair. The boy was

"I want Ivory!" came in a feeble voice from the bedroom.

"Does your side ache worse?" Rod asked, tiptoeing to the door.

"No. I am quite free from pain."

"Would you be afraid to stay alone just for awhile if I lock both doors and run to find Ivory and bring him back?"

"No. I will sleep," she whispered, closing her eyes. "Bring him quickly before I forget what I want to say to him."

Rod sped down the lane and over the fields to the brick store where Ivory usually bought his groceries. His cousin was not there, but one of the men came out and offered to take his horse and drive over the bridge to see if he were at one of the neighbors' on that side of the river. Not a word did Rod breathe of his aunt's illness; he simply said that she was lonesome for Ivory, and so he came to find him. In five minutes they saw the Boynton horse hitched to a tree by the roadside, and in a trice Rod called him and, thanking Mr. Bixby, got into Ivory's wagon to wait for him. He tried his best to explain the situation as they drove along, but finally concluded by saying: "Aunt really made me read the chapter to her, Ivory. I tried not to when I saw uncle's name in most every verse, but I couldn't help it."

"Of course you couldn't! Now you jump out and hitch the horse while I run in and see that nothing has happened while she's been left alone. Perhaps you'll have to go for Dr. Perry."

Ivory went in with fear and trembling, for there was no sound save the ticking of the clock. The fire burned low under the hearth, and the door was open into his mother's room. He lifted a candle that he had kept ready on the table and started to go to her. She was sleeping like a child, but exhaustion showed itself in every line of her face. He felt her hands and feet and found the soapstone in the bed, saw the brandy bottle and the remains of a cup of milk on the night stand, noted the handkerchief, still strong of camphor, on the counterpane and the blanket spread carefully over her knees, and then turned ap-

Ivory stood regarding him with a friendly smile.

"Nothing wrong, Rod! Dr. Perry couldn't have done any better with what you had on hand. I don't know how I should get along without you, boy!" Here Ivory patted Rod's shoulder. "You're not a child any longer, Rod; you're a man and a brother, that's what you are, and to prove it I'll take the first watch and call you up at 1 o'clock to take the second so that I can be ready for my school work tomorrow. How does that suit you?"

"Tiptop!" said the boy, flushing with pride. "I'll lie down with my clothes on; it's only 9 o'clock and I'll get four hours' sleep; that's a lot more than Napoleon used to have."

He carried the Bible upstairs and just before he blew out his candle he looked again at the chapter in Numbers, thinking he would show it to Ivory privately next day. Again the story enchanted him, and again, like a child, he puts his own name and his living self among the rods in the tabernacle.

"Ivory would be the prince of our house," he thought. "Oh, how I'd like to be Ivory's rod and have it be the one that was chosen to blossom and keep the rebels from murmuring!"

CHAPTER XIX.

Lois Buries Her Dead.

THE replies that Ivory had received from his letters of inquiry concerning his father's movements since leaving Maine and his possible death in the west left no reasonable room for doubt. Traces of Aaron Boynton in New Hampshire, in Massachusetts, in New York and finally in Ohio all pointed in one direction, and, although there were gaps and discrepancies in the account of his doings, the fact of his death seemed to be established by two apparently reliable witnesses.

That he was not accompanied in his earliest migrations seemed clear, but the woman mentioned as his wife disappeared suddenly from the reports, and the story of his last days was the story of a broken down, melancholy, overworked man, who had been in the habit of the rebels; and thou shalt take away their murmurings from me, that they die not."

"Oh, Aunt Boynton," cried the boy, "I love my name after I've heard about the almond rod! Aren't you proud that it's uncle's name that was written on the one that blossomed?"

He turned swiftly to find that his aunt's knitting had slipped on the door; her nerveless hands drooped by her side as if there were no life in them, and her head had fallen against the back of her chair. The boy was paralyzed with fear at the sight of her closed eyes and the deathly pallor of her face. He had never seen her like this before, and Ivory was away. He flew for a bottle of spirit, always kept in the kitchen cupboard for emergencies, and throwing wood on the fire in passing, he swung the crane so that the tea kettle was over the flame. He knew only the humble remedies that he had seen used here or there in illness and tried them timidly, praying every moment that he might hear Ivory's step. He warmed a soapstone in the embers and, taking off Mrs. Boynton's shoes, put it under her cold feet. He chafed her hands and gently poured a spoonful of brandy between her pale lips. Then, sprinkling camphor on a handkerchief, he held it to her nostrils, and to his joy she stirred in her chair; before many minutes her lids fluttered, her lips moved, and she put her hand to her heart.

"Are you better, aunt dear?" Rod asked in a very wavering and tearful voice.

She did not answer; she only opened her eyes and looked at him. At length she whispered faintly, "I want Ivory; I want my son."

"He's out, aunt dear. Shall I help you to bed the way Ivory does? If you'll let me, then I'll run to the bridge 'cross lots like lightning and bring him back."

She assented and, leaning heavily on his slender shoulder, walked feebly into her bedroom off the living room. Rod was as gentle as a mother, and he was familiar with all the little offices that could be of any comfort—the soapstone warmed again for her feet, the bringing of her nightgown from the closet and when she was in bed another spoonful of brandy in hot milk; then the camphor by her side, an extra homespun blanket over her and the door left open so that she could see the open fire that he made into a cheerful huddle, contrived so that it would not snap and throw out dangerous sparks in his absence.

All the while he was doing this Mrs. Boynton lay quietly in the bed talking to herself fitfully in the faint murmuring tone that was habitual to her. He could distinguish scarcely anything, only enough to guess that her mind was still on the Bible story that he was reading to her when she fainted. "The rod of Aaron was among the other rods," he heard her say, and a moment later, "Bring Aaron's rod again before the testimony."

Was it his uncle's name that had so affected her? wondered the boy, almost sick with remorse, although he had tried his best to evade her command to read the chapter aloud. What would Ivory, his hero, his pattern and example, say? It had always been Rod's pride to carry his little share of every burden that fell to Ivory, to be faithful and helpful in every task given to him. He could walk through fire without flinching, he thought, if Ivory told him to, and he only prayed that he might not be held responsible for this new calamity.

ed down upon the hearth, and the door was open into his mother's room. He lifted a candle that Rod had left ready on the table and stole softly to her bedside. She was sleeping like a child, but exhaustion showed itself in every line of her face. He felt her hands and feet and found the soapstone in the bed, saw the brandy bottle and the remains of a cup of milk on the light stand, noted the handkerchief, still strong of camphor, on the counterpane and the blanket spread carefully over her knees, and then turned approvingly to meet Rod stealing into the room on tiptoe, his eyes big with fear.

"We won't wake her, Rod. I'll watch awhile, then sleep on the sitting room lounge."

"Let me watch, Ivory! I'd feel better if you'd let me, honest I would!"

The boy's face was drawn with anxiety. Ivory's attention was attracted by the wistful eyes and the beauty of the forehead under the dark hair. He seemed something more than the child of yesterday—a care and responsibility and expense for all his loving obedience; he seemed all at once different tonight—older, more dependable, more trustworthy—in fact, a positive comfort and help in time of trouble.

"I did the best I knew how. Was anything wrong?" asked the boy, as Traces of Aaron Boynton in New Hampshire, in Massachusetts, in New York and finally in Ohio all pointed in one direction, and, although there were gaps and discrepancies in the account of his doings, the fact of his death seemed to be established by two apparently reliable witnesses.

That he was not unaccompanied in his earliest migrations seemed clear, but the woman mentioned as his wife disappeared suddenly from the reports, and the story of his last days was the story of a broken down, melancholy, unfriended man, dependent for the last offices on strangers. He left no messages and no papers, said Ivory's correspondent and never made mention of any family connections whatsoever. He had no property and no means of defraying the expenses of his illness after he was stricken with the fever. No letters were found among his poor effects and no article that could prove his identity, unless it were a small gold locket, which bore no initials or marks of any kind, but which contained two locks of fair and brown hair, intertwined. The tiny trinket was enclosed in the letter, as of no value, unless some one recognized it as a keepsake.

1. And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2. Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of them a rod according to the house of their fathers, all their princes according to the use of their fathers twelve rods: and thou shalt put every man's name upon his rod.

Through the boy's mind there darted a flash of a thought, a sad thought. He himself was a Rod on whom no man's name seemed to be written, or, at least, that he was, with no knowledge of his parents!

Suddenly he hesitated, for he had caught sight of the name of Aaron in the verse that he was about to read and did not wish to pronounce it in his aunt's hearing.

"This chapter is most too hard for me to read out loud, Aunt Boynton," he stammered. "Can I study it by myself and read it to Ivory first?"

"Go on, go on, you read very sweetly," Ivory could remember what comes to him when he hears her.

He boy continued, but without raising his eyes from the Bible:

3. And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the rod of Levi: for one rod shall be for the head of the house of each father.

4. And thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation before the testimony, where I will meet thee.

5. And it shall come to pass that when I shall choose all blossom: and I will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, whereby they murmur against you."

Rodman had read on, absorbed in the story and the picture it presented to his imagination. He liked the idea of all the princes having a rod according to the house of their fathers. He had thought of the little branches laid on the altar in the taber-

DOCTORING SICK TREES.

Tree Surgery as a Science Every Year More Generally Appreciated.
[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

A cavity in a decayed tree is something like a cavity in a decayed tooth. If an unreliable tree surgeon who has been called in to save the tree only partially removes the diseased part of the wood, uses no antiseptic coatings in the cavity and fills it up with cement the tree is no more cured than is a person whose decayed tooth has not been properly filled by a dentist. The only difference is that after the tree cavity has been covered, if the work has not been properly done, the tree has no way of making its trouble known except by further decay.

Within the last decade there has been a great increase in demand for

surgeons to repair decaying shade trees, but the possibilities of practicing fraud in this profession like the instance just cited have tempted so many unreliable people to dabble in the science that tree surgery has fallen section. They simply render the treated tree all the more liable to catch the disease which is "in the air."

All properly equipped firms of commercial surgeons should have ladders that will reach forty or more feet into a tree. Ladders, ropes and rubber soled shoes will allow a man to reach practically every part. Reliable estimates indicate that it takes somewhat longer, perhaps 25 per cent on an average to do work on a tree when these are used instead of climbing spurs, and this is one reason why many firms that value remuneration more than reputation use the spurs.

FENCE YOUR FARM.

"Have you ever noticed how small the line is between success and failure?" asks a contributor to the Farm and Field. "And in many cases in farming it is because the farmer fails to figure his business on an interest basis.

"It takes around $250 to make 100 acres hog and sheep tight. Where can any farmer invest $250 which will pay such a high rate of interest as this will? I have my farm fenced in this way, and we shall, as soon as the corn is planted, spend a little time planting pumpkin seed in the corn and at the last cultivation shall sow rape in most of the corn. Just as soon as the silos are filled we shall turn out the hogs to clean up, hog down the corn and eat the rape and pumpkins. This means that without any labor whatsoever 300 hogs will get their own living and grow fat from September to Christmas, and a large part of their feed will be from rape and pumpkin seed that cost less than $30. I am able to do this through having the farm hog fenced."

INEXPENSIVE ICEHOUSE.

An Efficient Storage House Can Be Constructed by Home Labor.

Among the comforts of the modern farmstead the icehouse holds an important position, especially during the summer season. An efficient type of storage house can be inexpensively constructed by home laborers when they have a little spare time, and the building will more than pay for itself in the first season of its active use. There is a middle western farmer who has been using the same icehouse for the last twenty years, and the building is still in fine, serviceable shape. It is of simple construction and cost little in time, labor or money. Any other countryman with a few odd moments, several pounds of nails, a hammer and a saw can duplicate it.

This storage house for ice is twelve feet square and rests on a five foot brick wall that is eight inches thick. It is essential to provide either a stone,

BOGUS SHOW RECORDS.

It certainly would be interesting to line up all the fellows who claim to win at Madison Square Garden, New York; Boston, Chicago and a lot of other shows and then get the show secretaries' records and find out who's who, for there certainly are a lot of Ananases somewhere judging by the number of fellows who advertise winnings at these shows in advertisements, circulars and letterheads. A recent paper showed three firsts won by three different fellows on White Cockbird at a single show, and that's the way all along the line.

There are getting to be so many liars in the ribbon winning business that you don't know any more who does tell the truth about a blue ribbon or a cup. It's a big shame too.

The fellows who do win are robbed of the honor honestly won, their advertisement loses force and part of the business a good win brings is lost.

It's time the shows protect their patrons and get after these swindlers.

Every fellow that wins ought to receive a certificate from the judge and show secretary vouching for his winning, and he ought to print this testimonial on his stationery and advertisements. When it gets to be understood that this testimonial must be furnished to an editor for advertising and that customers require the same the unscrupulous will not be quite so free.

And if a few of these fakers are followed up and prosecuted by poultry associations, poultry journals and by the postal officials they will take to the tail timber.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Watch the drainage when building a poultry house. Drain all water away from the building or you will have dampness and that means colds, roup and tuberculosis. An evergreen wind break is a big benefit.

Poultry seems to be entering into the social functions of the Four Hundred. "The Roosters' grand ball" was recently held at York (Pa.) Coliseum, where the turkey trot was all the go. Hen and chicken parties are thefad with feminine social lights, but the doctors still compose the ancient and honorable Quack society.

THE AMERICAN MUSCOVY DUCK

North and South America have two native domesticated ducks—the Cayuga, a pure black, named for Lake Cayuga, New York, where swam wild. The other is the Muscovy, a native of Peru, South America, and this quack is much different from other waddlers. The drake has cunies on its head like a turkey gobler and a fighting spirit as keen as any South American republic. It c surgeons to repair decaying shade trees, but the possibilities of practicing fraud in this profession like the instance just cited have tempted so many unreliable people to dabble in the science that tree surgery has fallen somewhat into disrepute.

As in all professions, there are reliable and unreliable men and firms competing for contracts in tree surgery. In recent years so many occasions have arisen when property owners felt the necessity of calling in commercial tree surgeons to attend to their trees that there are now numerous firms, both honest and dishonest, engaged in the work. Usually tree surgery is practiced in connection with some nearly related line, but often it is taken up as a business of itself. When a blight such as the chestnut bark disease infects the trees of a district the community or individuals in it will often spend considerable money to control ravages which may rob the whole district of its trees. An infection like the chestnut bark disease is contagious. It requires scientific knowledge of the disease to know whether an affected tree should be destroyed at once or is worth treating. It requires scientific training to understand the manner of growth of the fungi causing the disease and what treatment is best.

Many individuals who have had faith in tree surgery have lost it through following the advice of unreliable tree surgeons who claimed to be able to diagnose a case, but whose main interest was to collect a good sum of money for their work.

Besides the careless filling of decayed cavities in trees, there are other practices of certain so-called "tree surgeons" that do the trees more harm than good. Many of these "surgeons," as well as the people who employ them, do not realize the danger arising from fresh injuries to a tree. The tree owner should realize that prompt attention to fresh injuries will largely do away with the need of tree surgery fifteen or twenty years hence. The tree surgeons must realize that if they make fresh injuries in the living bark when treating decayed portions they are laying the tree open to more dangers of infection that will result in further decay.

Just as a person is subject to infection through cuts and scratches, trees are rendered subject to infection by having their living bark torn. Notwithstanding this, many tree surgeons use pruning hooks and climbing spurs and cut fresh gashes in the tree. To break off small dead branches a workman may use a long pruning hook as though it were a club. In doing so the hook usually causes injury to the young bark near by. Every new wound may furnish a new point of entrance for decay, even though the old dead branch may have been removed.

The use of climbing spurs should be particularly avoided on trees in localities where there is a contagious in-concrete or brick wall for the building, as otherwise the house will rot out in a few years. A five foot wall eight inches thick, such as described above, will cost approximately $50, while a solid concrete wall of similar construction can be built for about $25. It is preferable to lay three feet of the wall below grade line and the rest above the surface of the ground.—Farm and Fireside.

Repairing With Concrete.

A common source of annoyance and expense on the farm is the decay or giving away of building supports and foundations. When this occurs it is considerable trouble to replace these with new timber or ordinary masonry. It frequently happens that a building is in first class condition while its supports have disintegrated or collapsed. For making repairs of this character concrete surpasses any other material. This is due to the fact that it is a plastic substance and may be molded or poured into recesses not readily accessible when another material is used. Timber supports may be renewed without jacking up the building beyond its original elevation.—Kansas Farmer.

IN ORCHARD AND GARDEN

There should be practically no vacancies in the garden or orchard. This is a matter of great importance, but often neglected.

Potted strawberry plants may be set any time during the month of August. If soil and weather conditions are favorable they will make a fair growth before cold weather.

Screen wire coated with linseed oil will last many years as a protection for fruit trees from the gnawing of rabbits and mice. Make it into two inch cylinders about two feet long, and with fine wire fasten one around each young tree trunk.

If the onions need additional nitrogen sow nitrate of soda broadcast at the rate of 100 pounds to the acre. This will stimulate rapid growth and increase the size of the bulbs. Nitrate of soda may be used at intervals of two or three weeks until the crop is nearly matured.

In order to have soil that is comparatively free from weed seeds many gardeners begin a year in advance of planting to prepare the soil. If onions are to be planted next year manure is applied freely this year for a cultivated crop, such as corn or potatoes, and no weeds are permitted to go to seed.

Watch the drainage when building a poultry house. Drain all water away from the building or you will have dampness and that means colds, roup and tuberculosis. An evergreen wind break is a big benefit.

Poultry seems to be entering into the social functions of the Four Hundred. "The Roosters' grand ball" was recently held at York (Pa.) Coliseum, where the turkey trot was all the go. Hen and chicken parties are the fad with feminine social lights, but the doctors still compose the ancient and honorable Quack society.

Putting eggs in a dirty incubator to undergo three weeks of foul air is like setting them in a dirty garbage can, and no one can expect good hatches or good chicks from such work. Cleanse and disinfect the machine after each hatch, and note the better results.

It is very foolish to buy an incubator and then to run it contrary to the instructions of the manufacturer. The man who makes the machine has tested it out, and his guarantee demands that it must be run according to instructions, and a failure is sure to follow if these are disregarded.

It's a wise plan to visit poultry plants and shows when opportunity presents itself, also big city markets and poultry and egg depots. There are new ideas and methods being born every minute in this progressive age, and the poultrymen must be on the alert to learn.

It was considered by some a terrible thing for the eleven men composing the New York poultry trust to be sent to jail because they were rich. That was just the trouble. They were in haste to get rich too quick by ill gotten gains. Rich or poor, may every fellow get what's coming to him.

One reason why certain White Leghorns knock off laying so quick when a cold snap comes is because they are built on the Jersey skeeter style. Leghorns that are good size, full of vigor, housed comfortably and fed right are egg machines that keep right on the job cold or no cold.

The Sicilian Buttercups are growing rapidly in favor, and the club already has sixty members. This is a beautiful, useful breed and bound to win its way.

Many of our poultry associations seem to think that the chief purpose of their existence is to hold a successful show. We have known such associations to be turned down flat by the state department when they applied for an appropriation, whereas if they had followed the show up with educational work and carried on a vigorous campaign for better and more poultry in their own county state aid would have been quickly given. The poultry show is a fine thing, but it's not the whole show by any means.

At the Family Hotel.

The wide diversity of nursery methods in this country is nowhere more noticeable than at the family hotel. Here one sees children, who, if they were not born with the idea that courteous attention should be accorded their elders, have had this truth instilled into them so early that it seems a part of them.

In a certain family hotel one table exhibits two girls, in the rosy flush of their teens, accompanied by a mother to whom they pay delightful little attentions. They remain standing until she is seated, or if her entrance to the dining room has been delayed, they always rise as she draws near.

Equally pleasant to watch is the devotion of a very fat, chubby, ten-year-old son to his mother. The glorious appetite of youth drives him to the table the minute the meal is served, but the entrance of his mother is the signal for her son's graceful drawing out of her chair, a service performed with the manner of a Chesterfield.

It is also refreshing to watch a third table, at which a father and son—the latter probably in his thirties, though he looks like a younger brother—take their meals. The younger man always stands until his father is seated and never fails to rise should the father be the last to enter the room.

When the meal is over he may be observed to step aside to allow the older man to precede him. He has done this from a mere child, and it has now become a part of his being.

Too Much Solicitude.

It is not easy to be a good hostess, especially a good tea party hostess. There are many little things to remember.

The hostess wishes guests to enjoy the good things, but solicitude can be overdone.

The writer once went to a tea where the hostess overdid it badly. She must have thought that her guests had had nothing to eat for days by the way she pressed sandwiches and buns, tea, and more cups of tea, on them.

"No, thank you," and "Really, thanks, I have had a huge tea," and the like assurances were useless. The kind hostess continued offering more.

There's a vast difference between "Don't you have a little more?" and "Do try one of these hot buns!" to Mrs. De Fussy's continued badgering to consume more and more.

After all, they were all sensible men and women, with average intelligence and brains—not a party of children at a school treat.

Guest Room Supplies.

Nothing is more disconcerting to guests than a guest room that is not well furnished. Of course every one is supposed to carry his own toilet articles with him, excepting the chance or unexpected visitor who comes unprepared.

But, equally, of course, the hostess should not take individual toilet articles for granted, and she should if pos-

Used "Fruit-a-lives" With The Best of Results.

GEORGE MCKAY Esq.

KIPPEN, ONT., June 17th, 1913. "I have been using 'Fruit-a-lives' as a family remedy for many years. They are the best medicine I have ever tried. 'Fruit-a-lives' do me the most good—they never gripe and their action is pleasant.

"I have used them for Indigestion and Constipation with the best results, and I heartily recommend them to anyone similarly afflicted.

These troubles have left me completely and I give 'Fruit-a-lives' full credit for all this. A nicer pill a man cannot take."

GEORGE MCKAY.

The enormous demand for "Fruit-a-lives" is steadily increasing, due to the fact that this wonderful fruit medicine gives prompt relief in all cases of Indigestion, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Rheumatism, Chronic Headaches, and Neuralgia, and all Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. Sold by all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

CHOICE OF SHOES.

Luxurious Footwear of the Season a Joy to the Fastidious Woman.

The woman who desires to look smart and correct is fastidious about her gloves and boots. Gloves with rather wide stitching on the back are liked just now. White gloves should not be worn before 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Buttoned boots with curved heels and tops of contrasting kid are fashion's choice for town wear.

ants her nest in a conspicuous place, here she can watch everything that aspires.

There are two varieties, the pure white and the white and black, the latter appearing twice the size of the male and the body being long, oval shape and carried almost horizontal. The fowl is called Muscovy because its flesh has a musk flavor.

If this is objectionable the taste may be removed by severing the rump.

DON'TS.

Don't use slug shot for Biddy bugs. It kills lice and hens, too, sometimes. Don't forget that the best clothes hanger for midnight neck jerkers is the iron jawed bulldog.

Don't put your mistakes on others, especially your wife.

Don't scold squabs. Pick them dry. Take enough time to put them into perfect shape for market so they will grow up well with the very best.

Don't use an incubator after you hatch ducklings before you have washed the egg chamber with salt water.

Don't mollycoddle young stock. They are not house plants, but you can take them such.

Don't allow filth to accumulate anywhere and contaminate the air. Sanitary eggs must be made of pure feed water and laid in sanitary environment.

Don't be surprised to find contagious diseases among your fowls if you allow rats to harbor. They carry disease from one place to another.

Don't let the incubator run itself. A little neglect may cause a big loss.

Don't count on a chick from every egg, especially if the express baggage man has had a chance at them.

Don't serve chicks on the shell to your customers.

Don't let lazy prostration be your tradition.

Getting It Right.

He's broke, and the girl he was engaged to has dropped him." She dropped and broke him, eh?" No. She broke and dropped him."—Boston Post.

Just a Hint.

Fortitude is a great help in distress and trouble.

and women—with average intelligence and brains—not a party of children at a school treat.

Guest Room Supplies.

Nothing is more disconcerting to guests than a guest room that is not well furnished. Of course every one is supposed to carry his own toilet articles with him, excepting the chance or unexpected visitor who comes unprepared.

But, equally, of course, the hostess should not take individual toilet articles for granted, and she should if possible furnish her pretty guest room dressing table with an adequate supply. Bone, celluloid or ivory, in white, is the best material for these articles, for any of these substances can be readily cleaned.

A simple light for the guest room is an electric bulb supported by a glass candlestick, fourteen inches high and shaded by a fringe trimmed, cretonne shade.

Indian Lawn Party.

Should the hostess who is giving a garden party wish to emulate the noble red man the lawn may be temporarily transformed into a miniature Indian encampment. A near Indian teepee, looking enough like the real thing to deceive any ordinary being, can be purchased ready to set up, and in this—or from it—the refreshments may be served.

Navajo blankets, Indian baskets and pottery, papoose slings, tomahawks of papier mache, pieces of wampum and a pipe of peace are among the characteristic decorations for an Indian lawn party, while souvenirs of birch bark will prove acceptable to the guests.

National Entertainments.

The fashionable hostess in her endless search for a novel way in which to entertain her guests has paused a moment to enjoy what she chooses to call "national" functions.

These include the Russian tea, the Japanese and Chinese breakfasts, Italian, French, German and Hungarian dinners, Holland and Spanish luncheons and last, but not least, the Bohemian late suppers.

Button Bags.

Pink and blue gingham button bags with one or two members of the button family embroidered on the outside, with a bone button for their heads, are convenient for the family workbasket.

SMART STYLES.

Extremely deep cuffs will be very smart.

Upstanding ruff collars are more and more liked.

All silk afternoon gowns are promised for fall.

The velvet sash is a new and very effective note.

Long full tunics are seen over plaited underskirts.

Velvet millinery will surely have a great vogue this autumn.

Cavalier capes are being made nowadays for quite little girls.

A hat shaped like a jockey cap is the latest whim in millinery.

White silk serge is used for tennis costumes by very chic women.

White gloves are now pretty generally worn with black costumes.

Pique is more used than any other material for collars and waistcoats.

erary gift. She is said to have inherited her mother's talent for writing, together with her father's love of outdoor life.

The Burlesons are from Austin, Tex. They have lived in the capital for many years, where Mr. Burleson has served as congressman. For three generations the Burlesons have been prominent in public affairs in the state of Texas. Mrs. Burleson is of southern stock. Her father was a native of Maryland, but settled in Texas. He was a surgeon in the army during the war with Mexico and liked the life of the frontier so well that he brought his bride to Texas and settled there when the war was over.

Miss Lucy was educated at the Sweetbriar Academy For Girls in Virginia. She is a charming and accomplished young woman. The attentions of a bachelor statesman to her have set Washington to wondering if there may not soon be another wedding in cabinet circles.

PLANNING A HOUSE.

Some Hints For Convenience In Its Arrangement.

If you are preparing to build a house plan first for an airy, sunny cellar. It is quite true that a high cellar, as it is usually treated, is an eyesore. But if the cellar foundation is faced with cement or shingles or brick or whatever the material of the house may be it is not out of harmony with the rest of the house and does not have the stilted, ungainly look that a high cellar of different construction from the rest of the house gives. Remember that a dry, sunny cellar means health.

Be careful to have all electric lights where they can be easily reached. In many houses the pantry light, for instance, is where it is hidden when the swinging door is fastened open.

Arrange the lights to illuminate the bureau, chiffoniers and dressing tables or other pieces of furniture which boast mirrors. These must be placed so that the light shines to some extent on the face that looks into them.

Plan the bedrooms with an idea of the placing of the beds. Put the windows where drafts directly across the beds can be avoided.

Have a door that closes easily and securely on the back stairs, either at the head or at the foot, so that the odor of cooking in the kitchen will not penetrate throughout the house.

Plan to have the bedroom closets in the walls between the bedrooms which are to be occupied by persons easily disturbed. If the closets separate the bedrooms they serve to deaden noises. This arrangement occupies interior space, of course, when closets can be put in the eaves, but it insures quiet bedrooms.

Cool Looking Decoration.

A clear glass bowl such as is used for goldfish, filled with carbonated water, will, if nasturtiums and leaves are placed in it, soon become a mass of frostlike moisture. The escaping gas in the water creeps over each leaf and flower, making the whole seem covered with dew. For luncheon on a hot day it is the most refreshing bit of coolness imaginable.

New Place Cards.

Original and new are place cards saving tiny flat baskets or bouquets of paper flowers at one corner. The flowers are in their natural colors, and the bouquets have lace edging around them.

THE LATEST IN SLIPPERS.

Antelope and black patent leather. The combination of sandal straps and buttons is very dressy, the buttons insuring a perfect fit across the instep. Finishing the bracelet strap around the ankle are small buckles in special design with same on toe. Accompanying the shoes are silk stockings exactly the shade of the antelope leather.

Lingerie Trimmings.

Laces have large use for tunics, flouncings, capes, boleros and basques. Margots and novelty net tops, chantillies, metals and plain nets are used.

Embroideries are chiefly in organdie and crape edgings, baby sets, baby flouncings, veenings, beadings and similar staples.

PERFUMED GLOVES.

A dainty old fashion was that of perfumed gloves. Here is an old recipe for giving a subtle and sweet odor to one's gloves if one likes to use it:

Mix half an ounce of essence of roses, a dram each of oil of cloves and mace and a quarter of an ounce of frankincense.

Place the mixture in tissue paper between the gloves, then put a heavy weight upon them.

Leave the gloves under this weight for a day or two until they are permeated with the fragrance. This will cling to them until they are entirely worn out.

After taking off the gloves they should be shaken, stretched and put where they lie flat.

Historical Meeting To-Night.

The lecture at the first of the regular meetings of the Historical Society to-night should be of special interest. Prof. Mitchell has chosen a most appropriate subject for these days of war. An opportunity to contrast methods of mustering Canadian troops and sending them to the front nearly half a century ago and those used at the present time should be welcomed. The meeting of the Society are sure to carry a certain amount of patriotic enthusiasm during these stirring days and the course of lectures is bound to have added interest for everyone. Since the last meeting of the Society many objects of special interest have been added to the collection. Some of the implements used by our forefathers when they settled in this district about one hundred and twenty-five years ago and other interesting utensils have been presented all being well displayed in show cases purchased during the summer. All of these articles, particularly those used by our Ontario Soldiers in the early days, bring to mind deeds that make us proud of our heritage. As has been the custom in the past, the meetings of the Society are open for the general public, the entrance is free and everyone is welcome. They begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

held their annual meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Napanee Collegiate Institute on 22nd and 23rd, 1914.

The session on Thursday morning opened at 10.30 o'clock with Mr. Wm.
McKay, Principal of N.P.S., and President of the Association, in the chair.

Rev. Mr. Cragg kindly conducted the opening exercises by reading a short passage of scripture and making a few explanatory remarks, the essence of the whole matter being, "Love God and keep his commandments for this is the whole duty of man." He reminded the teachers that the Bible is the greatest text-book, then offered prayer.

The President, Mr. McKay, then addressed the teachers. One thing he wished to make clear was that the convention was no holiday for the teachers, but that we meet for mutual benefit and to gain a more optimistic view, of our work. Among other good suggestions were two: 1 Pupils should not be allowed to learn by rote with no understanding. 2 The teachers should take part in the games of their pupils, by directing them and suggesting proper games.

Sixty-four responded to roll call.
Many from Mr. Reid's division came in later.

The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted without change.

A communication from Miss E.
Baker, Hawkesbury, resigning the Secretaryship of the local branch of O.Y.A., was read, also one from the Department of Education, Toronto, re Superannuation, and one concerning resolutions adopted by this Association in 1913.

The Treasurer's Report was read
Mr. McLean and Mr. McKay chosen as auditors.

Committees were chosen:

1. To consider communications.
2. To prepare for a circulating library, (Mr. Reid, Mr. McLean, Dr.
Grey, Miss DeGerre, Mrs. Gordanier,
Miss R. Patterson and Miss Estcott.)
3. To consider resolutions of O.E.A.
4. To act as ushers at the town hall.

The report of the Committee on Strathcona Physical Training in his division was given by Mr. D. A.
Nesbitt, B.A., who reported no success last year. He hoped some progress would be made this year and stated exams. would be held at Xmas.

Mr. Reid, M.A., reported excellent work done by the teachers in his Addington division and also explained that the grant was spent in swings, etc., for physical improvement. Mr.
McKay read a letter and urged the teachers to form a class this fall to take a course in physical training.

Roll Call in the afternoon was followed by an instrumental solo by Mr. Leighton Anderson.

The Inspectors then addressed the teachers. Mr. Nesbitt expressed appreciation of the good work done by the great majority of his teachers and expressed his opinion that a good teacher cannot be paid in money. After telling the teacher several ways in which they must aid their Inspector, he advised the teachers to give the pupils a taste for the higher things of life, to leave an impression of their vision of life upon the pupils. Mr. Reid defined the teachers aim and showed how it could be attained, and concluded his remarks by urging the teachers to make plans for all their work.

Miss Norma Shannon followed with a vocal solo.

Mr. Walker, B.A., of Normal School,
Bathurst, gave his first address aiding. Mr. Bengough's lecture was entitled "Why is Flies Blues?" and needs no comment as he is a prime favorite with the people of Napanee.

Friday morning at 9 a.m., Mr.
West gave his address on "Physical Culture in P.S.," showing several reasons why this drill was beneficial to both teacher and pupils. Mr.
Andrews, H.S., Newburgh, being absent, Mr. McKay led in the discussion.

Moved by Mr. McLean, seconded by
Mr. Nesbitt, and carried, that Mr.
McKay, Mr. West and Miss Shannon be a committee to arrange for a class of teachers to take Physical Culture.

The reports of Committees were then given.

(a) On communications:

Mr. Walker, B.A., of Normal School,
Peterborough, gave his first address on "Treatment of some of the Elementary Processes of Arithmetic for Primary Grades." In the discussion that followed, led by Messrs Nesbit, Reid and McLean, most of the teachers thought that about one-half of the time usually given to Arithmetic might be spent to better advantage on some other subject.

The most pleasing feature of the afternoon was a recitation by Mr.
Pengough, of Toronto, who was to be the speaker at the evening entertainment, and the hope was expressed on all sides that he would repeat it then.

In the evening the concert was held in the town hall, Mr. M. S. Madole occupying the chair. The musical part of the programme was under the able management of Misses Hall, Shannon and Parks. Seven selections were rendered by local talent, Mr.
Feuter, cellist of Switzerland, kindly
